

"OUT EXPENDITURES," HOOVER WARNS CONGRESS

TWO FARM BOYS WITNESS END OF GANG CEREMONY

Drove Into "Court" After Execution Of Beer
Runners

Chicago, Dec. 7. —(AP)—The private "ceremonies" culminating the end of a gangland "ride" were no longer a secret today as two farm boys related their experiences in driving into the midst of a double slaying with the executioners still grouped around the bodies of their victims.

Leonard Gage and his brother, Elmer, of Roselle, Ill., are the two who got a peek into the "high court" of those who take the law into their hands—a court from which no appeal is ever registered by those brought before it.

Trial was over and sentence already passed and executed upon Nicholas Maggio, 36, and Tony A. Persico, 38, both of suburban Melrose Park, said by police to be alcohol cooks, when the boys drove up to the spot where hoodlums were disposing of their bodies.

Cousin of Policeman

Maggio was a cousin of Lieut. Paul Maggio, of the Melrose Park police force, who identified the bodies shortly after the Gage boys led officers to the scene from which they had been chased a few minutes before by bullets and a bloodied car. Maggio said he did not know either of the men had been engaged in the alcohol racket.

As told by Leonard the boys were driving along when they were attracted by three cars drawn up in a circle, with headlights turned on. Thinking an accident had occurred, he said, they stopped and inquired.

"Then we saw two men lying on the ground alongside the road who looked as if they had been shot," he said.

When two men carrying shotguns walked up to us and ordered us to "get out of here," Elmer said he replied "we're getting in." Shots followed their departure, he said, and one of the cars pursued them out a mile.

Heads Blown Off

The youths drove on to a suburban police station and accompanied by Highway Police returned to the scene, where the bodies, with heads and shoulders almost blown off, were found.

Police said the victims had been beer truck drivers for Nick de Grasse, reputed Capone liquor boss in the western suburban territory.

Irving Park police early today said they were holding John A. Rooney, Oak Park, business agent of the Circular Distributors Union, after Mrs. Cora Maggio, widow of one of the victims, said the two men left home last night intending to visit Rooney. Police said he would be held for the inquest today.

Rooney, police said, declared the men did not arrive and that he did not see them. Rooney told police, they said, he bought a half barrel of beer from the men four months ago for $25.

Farmer's Neighbors
Husk Out His Corn

(Telegraph Special Service)
Lee, Dec. 7.—Harvey G. Rissiter sustained a fractured leg about a month ago when he accidentally slipped and fell at his farm near here and has been laid up at his home since Monday morning about 25 men, neighbors and relatives, went to the Rissiter home, some of the farmers being accompanied by their wives. The men went direct to the corn field while the women gathered in the house and provided a very tasty dinner to which all did justice at the noon hour. Early in the afternoon, the men had completed the task of husking out 30 acres of corn for their injured neighbor who because of his injury was unable to attend to this work.

A BUGGY BUT NO HORSE

Birmingham, Ala.—Comptroller C. E. Armstrong thought somebody was playing a pre-Apple-Pol's day joke on him the other day, when he found a bill for a buggy tire on his desk. "Does the city own a horse and buggy?" he asked his secretary. "Yes, a buggy—but not a horse," she replied. Garbage superintendent J. P. Zeigler insists on using the horse, which he also owns solely.

MARCHERS LEFT CAPITAL: JEER POLICE TO END

Leaders Of Demonstrators Say They Are Satisfied

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Truck after truck headed into the west and south today, taking the last of the shouting, singing demonstrators for unemployment relief over the long, tedious miles to their homes.

With a final jeer at the police who had confined them to a pavement encampment for three days, the men and women piled into their vehicles, stowed away blankets and said they were satisfied with the showing they had made.

Police vigilance was not relaxed until the last truck was gone and then, weary and dog-tired from almost continuous duty since Sunday, the hundreds of Washington bluecoats sought their rest.

Every available policeman marched with the cheering and jeering demonstrators yesterday from their roped-off camp to the Capitol grounds and back again. Strong lines held the marchers outside the grounds while select committees presented relief demands to Vice-President Curtis and Speaker Garner.

Five of their number were left behind in hospitals today, ill with pneumonia. They had been sleeping in a vacant house without heat.

FIREMEN GIVEN NEW DUTIES BY COUNCIL ORDER

They Must Keep Drinking
Fountains Clean
And Sanitary

Members of the fire department were today assigned an additional duty, that of keeping the public drinking fountains in the business district in a sanitary condition. Commissioner John H. Loftus told the council last evening that the fountains were in a deplorable condition and not fit for the use intended and asked which of the city's departments were responsible for this condition. He volunteered to assign a man from his department to care for the fountains with the consent of the council and after it had been determined which department was responsible for the upkeep of the fountains. It was finally decided that the Department of Public Health and Safety was responsible and Commissioner Brooks told the council that the firemen would look after the care of the fountains.

Commissioner George Campbell called the attention of the council to a practice which is daily increasing that of cutting corners by motorists in the business district and asked that the intersection of First and Second streets on Galena avenue be remarked with zone paint for the protection of the pedestrian public. The Peoria avenue and First street intersection was also included and Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber was instructed to superintend the markings.

Consider Sewer

The council passed and paid the regular monthly bills.

The board of local improvements met following the council meeting to consider local improvement ordinance, No. 275 which provides for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Seventh street east of Jackson avenue for a distance of 230 feet, at an estimated cost of $417. At the public hearing one property owner entered objections on the grounds that he had repeatedly sought such an improvement in the past together with a request for the extension of the water mains and had not been successful. He stated that he had been compelled to construct his own private system and water main a distance of 150 feet and opposed being assessed for the proposed sewer which is sought by two property owners on Sixth street. Action was deferred until the next meeting by the board.

FARM BUREAU'S LEGAL PROGRAM TO BE DECIDED

Demands on Congress
Will Be Framed
During Day

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Ready for final endorsement of varied demands for farm relief, the American Farm Bureau Federation today heard one of its leaders promise support of any surplus-control plan which promises success.

Relief legislation was the program of the day. Before the Farm Bureau's 14th annual convention adjourns tonight, which approved resolutions upon which demands to Congress will be based.

Chester Gray of Missouri, who represents the largest farm organization at Washington, advocated that the Farm Board should be given authority to use "any and all" plans for increasing prices by controlling crop surpluses.

"This means," he said, "the equalization fee, the debenture, the allotment plan or whatever else may be devised should be made available for national legislation."

President Edward A. O'Neal and other leaders still support the equalization fee, but indications are that the new program will give them blanket authority to support the domestic allotment along with other plans for making the tariff effective on crops and livestock for which there is no export market.

Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, and M. L. Wilson of Montana State College, foremost advocates of allotting acreage among individual farmers, also discussed farm relief.

Local Scouts Will Broadcast Playlet

Scoutmaster Kenneth Abbott has accepted the invitation of the Blackhawk Area Council for Troop 89 to present a broadcast over station KFLV at Rockford. This Scouting broadcast which will probably consist of a Scout playlet, will be held some time in January.

Troop registration has been started and an effort is being put forward to re-register more boys than a year ago. Troop 89 has a very good chance of winning the President Hoover award for bringing new boys into Scouting.

The play cast is requested to be at the Christian church parlors each night after school at 4 o'clock for rehearsals.

WILL GOODFELLOWS IN THIS CITY BE FORCED TO GIVE UP THE PLAN?

Answer Is Up To Dixon
Citizens Who Can Donate

Will the Goodfellow movement have to be abandoned in Dixon this year?

The answer is up to those who are financially able to make a donation, even though it be small, to provide the needy children of Dixon and community with some little thing that will make December 25 Christmas—not just another day.

Donations to this fund to bring a little happiness into the tender hearts of unfortunate Dixon children are not coming in as the backers of the movement had expected, and unless there is a prompt response on the part of those who are able there are going to be tears instead of smiles on the innocent faces of a lot of Dixon youngsters.

Aims Are Simple

In normal years when the number of families unable to provide their own Christmas for their children totaled only 25 or 50, the Goodfellow fund was usually ample to give all those children a good supply of clothing, shoes, etc. But this year, with about 400 families in Dixon destitute because of the unemployment situation, the Goodfellow Club will probably be able to provide only a very simple basket for each youngster's Christmas. The aim will be to give each child something, some little luxuries that the unemployment which is unable to provide because of lack of funds.

Because of the great number of children who will depend upon the Goodfellow Club this year it will be necessary for every Goodfellow to strain his pocketbook to the limit if the job is to be accomplished.

Any donation, no matter how small, will be appreciated and gratefully accepted. The time is short, so please act now to help this most worthy cause. There is no "overhead" expense. No salaries of any kind. Every penny donated to the Goodfellow Club will go to some worthy youngster who could not have a Christmas without your generous help.

New Winesap Apple Has Been Produced

Lebanon, Ill., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Dr. E. B. Spencer, Professor of Biology, McKendree College, has announced the discovery of a new winesap apple, which will be known as the Edwin Rolin Spencer winesap.

Dr. Spencer said today he first noticed the apple on a seedling winesap tree growing on his farm near Cape Girardeau, Mo. "I plan the planting of 100 grafts on my farm at Cape Girardeau, and the same number on my fruit farm in Ohio and the presentation of a tree to the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois for further investigation," the professor said.

The new apple has a bright red color and is as large as the average Delicious variety. It is said to have good keeping qualities and does not crack up on ripening as does the Stamen Winesap.

Fire Dept. Will Serve Two Cities

Christmas Customs For FOREIGN LANDS

In Bohemia, the carp—disdained in America—distinguishes the Christmas Eve dinner. Selected as carefully as the American housewife chooses her turkey, the fish is taken home alive and placed in a tub until the moment when it is to be cleaned, cooked and eaten. Then all the youngsters crowd into the kitchen to watch and learn.

ELEVATION OF FARM INCOMES PLEA OF BOARD

Congress Is Asked To Take Action For That Purpose

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Congressional action to increase the income of the American farmer by elevating the general level of agricultural prices to a par with other commodities was advocated today by the Farm Board.

This multi-pronged problem was assigned to Congress in a special report on legislative recommendations which said the board's stabilization operations were powerless to achieve this end.

No hint as to the board's ideas on the form of such legislation was given except that the process should pay "the costs, if any, on a continuous and self-sustaining basis for regulating acreage or the quantities sold, or both."

The board also urged that it be authorized to compromise debts now owned by farm cooperative associations and be provided either with additional money for the use of co-operatives or empowered to borrow funds on its own bonds or debentures for that purpose.

Net assets of the board's $500,000 revolving fund were placed at $140,000,000 when "all outstanding loans are appraised on a conservative basis."

"Except for the necessity of setting aside $23,000,000 to cover the board's equity in wheat and cotton turned over to the Red Cross," the report said, "the present value of the revolving fund would be $163,000,000."

"These amounts are left after deducting all losses on account of stabilization operations, and setting aside liberal reserves against possible losses on loans now outstanding to cooperative associations."

Along with the legislative recommendations, the board transmitted to Congress its annual report which laid down a five-fold program for boosting the general farm income. It advocated a reduction in international trade barriers and readjustment of agricultural debts by agreement among debtors and creditors.

Surplus Not Main III

Holding that the present low prices of farm products must in general be ascribed to other causes than heavy surpluses, the board said any remedial plan should include:

"1.—Hastening business recovery in the United States, thereby increasing returns from products sold in the domestic market.

"2.—Steps to initiate recovery in international trade, thereby strengthening foreign demand for export products.

"3.—Readjustment of taxes, interest, and principal payments, freight rates and other fixed charges which enter into the farmer's expenses and now abnormally depress the share which he receives of the final retail price.

"4.—Further strengthening and expanding of cooperative organizations to reduce the expenses of marketing and increase the producer's share of the consumer's dollar.

"5.—Efforts, through cooperative marketing associations or in other ways, to secure a better adjustment

COUNTY SETS ASIDE $24,000 TO FEED NEEDY

8,000 Monthly Is Made Available For Dec.
Jan. and Feb.

Lee county will receive $24,000 of the state motor fuel gas tax fund this winter to be used in providing relief for needy families, it was decided at this morning's session of the County Board of Supervisors in the adoption of a resolution addressed to the state Department of Finance. It was estimated that there are approximately 3,000 persons in Lee county who will require aid during the winter months and this amount will be taken from the county's share of the gas tax refund to be used for relief purposes by the various townships.

The resolution provides the sum of $8,000 for each of the months of December, January and February to be used for relief purposes. The sums will be paid into the County Treasury on the first of each month. The board unanimously recommended the selection of the present road and bridge committee to audit the claims filed by the various townships in carrying out the provisions and requirements of the relief measure.

At the conclusion of the morning session, the board remained in their chambers to discuss the operation of the new plan.

At this morning's session the pauper claims committee reported on bills filed against the county for the burial of paupers. At the last meeting, the customary sum of $50, which previously had been allowed for the burial of a pauper, was reduced by action of the pauper claims committee to $40.

It developed this morning that the board several months ago adopted a resolution providing that morticians receive a minimum of $50 for this service and the $10 reduction voted at the September meeting was ordered paid.

State's Attorney Edward Jones made his initial appearance before the board yesterday and was invited to address that body. He accepted and was heartily received. The new prosecutor informed the members that he was at their service at all times to furnish opinions which might confront the board's committees or the board as a whole and asked their cooperation in behalf of the taxpayers of the county. At the conclusion of his short talk, he presented the supervisors with cigars.

At this morning's session of the board, County Clerk Fred Dimick presented a check in the sum of $200 explaining that the sum was presented by former State's Attorney Mark C. Keller subject to his campaign promise to turn back to the county 20 per cent of his quarterly earnings. The board unanimously received the amount instructing the clerk to deposit it with County Treasurer Sterling Schrock.

STATE TO ASK DEATH PENALTY FOR J. VARECHA

Fugitive From Dixon
Institution Will Admit Murder

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—With an indicated plea of guilty today by 17-year-old James (Jaggy) Varecha when he goes on trial before Chief Justice John Prystalski in the Criminal Court to the murder of Frank F. Jordan during a robbery, the court was to be faced with a difficult decision.

Defense Attorney Joseph Nosek, in announcing a guilty plea for his client said, he would ask leniency on the ground that the state was responsible for the boy's crimes because he had not been returned to the state institution for mental defects at Dixon from which he had escaped.

On the other side Assistant State Attorney Walker Butler said he would demand the death penalty.

Judge Prystalski must decide between the two. Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Criminal Courts' Behavior Clinic, after studying the boy and his life history yesterday decided he was sane but "beyond reform."

Varecha confessed to slaying Jordan the night of Nov. 16 and to abducting and assaulting Miss Lillian Henry later the same night. Three months before he had fled the state institution.

The fire department responded to the alarm and extinguished the smoldering fire with chemicals before any greater damage resulted. The loss is covered by insurance.

COME FOR AUTO THIEF

Omaha police were enroute to Dixon today to take Theodore Allstrom to the 22nd street station for a charge of the theft of an automobile taken Friday afternoon from the court house square. Allstrom waived extradition yesterday afternoon, when questioned by Sheriff Fred Richardson, and volunteered to return to Omaha to face the charges. He was halted Tuesday morning east of Dixon on the Lincoln Highway by State Officer Frank Tryne. Allstrom told officers that he had taken the car to go to Chicago, where he planned to be married as soon as he could find employment.

MADE SECOND ESCAPE

Hatless and coatless, Charles Carver, a Tennesseean residing northeast of Paw Paw, dashed from his home in a down pour of rain yesterday afternoon when he observed deputy sheriffs approaching some distance from the house, and raced across fields before he could be halted. Deputies went to the house with a warrant for Carver's arrest on a charge of theft of a small quantity of leaf tobacco from the barn of a neighboring farmer.

It was Carver's second successful flight to escape arrest, he having made his escape last Saturday afternoon when a deputy went to the house armed with the alleged warrant and recovered the alleged stolen tobacco. At that time, Carver is said to have fled from the house while the search warrant was being read and to have escaped across field coatless and hatless. He returned however, and succeeded in evading the officers a second time before they were able to reach the house.

LIMITATION OF FEDERAL ROAD WORK IS URGED

President Hoover's
Recommendation
To Congress

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Congress was asked today by President Hoover to limit federal highway aid to the states in 1934 to $40,000,000 already authorized, and to sanction no further appropriations until Treasury conditions improve.

The Chief Executive said in his budget message that the annual aid program was increased from $75,000,000 to $125,000,000 beginning with 1931, and had been "materially further advanced" within the past two years by $200,000,000 provided in emergency legislation.

The Bureau of Public Roads listed appropriations for the fiscal year 1933 at $222,000,000, including $122,000,000 from the unemployment relief bill.

Mr. Hoover said he was "not unmindful" that the emergency appropriations represent advances only but added:

"I do not, however, view this as a commitment which of itself necessitates further authorization for federal appropriations until such time as the financial condition of the Treasury justifies such action."

REDUCED BUDGET IS SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS TODAY

Hoover Also Proposes A
Manufacturers' Tax
In Budget Message

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover presented to Congress today a drastically reduced budget, recommending a 2 1/2 percent excise tax, retention of the gasoline tax, rigid economies including an additional 11 percent cut in government salaries, and a big slash in veterans' benefits.

He asked for total appropriations of $4,218,808,344, saying net expenditures would total $3,256,354,900 against receipts of $2,942,162,713 leaving a deficit of $307,192,187. It was to offset this that the new taxation was proposed.

No mention of war debts was made in the entire presidential message, but the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, sent to Congress simultaneously, disclosed that payments due from foreign nations had been included in striking the government's balance.

Neither did Mr. Hoover make any mention of legalization of beer.

Suggestions Made To Congress By Pres.—

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—President Hoover's Budget today warned Congress it must watch the nation's purse strings, and recommended that it:

Enact a sales tax of 2 1/2 per cent.

Retain for another year the 1 cent gasoline tax.

Cut government salaries 11 per cent and in addition continue the present 8-13 per cent cut under the furlough plan.

Restrict benefits to veterans by $127,000,000.

Make appropriations of $4,218,808,344.

Mr. Hoover also predicted a deficit of $311,467,307 for the present fiscal year, an estimated deficit of $307,192,187 next year, unless the additional tax program and economy program is adopted.

He did not mention war debts.

Deficit Of $1,146,478,307

The President estimated the present fiscal year would end next June with a deficit of $1,146,378,307, expenditures being $3,770,735,000 and estimated receipts $2,624,356,693.

"Such a situation cannot be continued without disaster to the Federal finances," he said.

In his veterans economy proposal the President defied those clamorous for maintenance of present benefits, by recommending to Congress legislation which would strip $127,000,000 worth of pensions, compensation and allowances off the rolls. This would be done by limiting all benefits, except to ex-soldiers with claims based on active service after 65, to persons with a net income, if single, of less than $1,500 and if married of less than $3,500.

Wholesale re-examination of those now on the rolls would be followed by removal of all between the quantities produced and the needs of the market."

Legislative Report
Explaining that to "help raise the level of farm incomes, devices other than stabilization are required," the report on legislation added:
"In the light of the experience with stabilization over the past three years, the board recommends that any new legislation be based on the following two principles, which have been demonstrated by experience to be essential for effective relief:
"1. Prices can not be raised unless someone pays the cost. The new plan must be self-sustaining, with a continuous method of covering the costs.
"Prices of other products are now 40 per cent above the prices at which farm products are selling. If the new method raised prices to domestic consumers to the level of prices of other commodities, that would not be giving farmers an unfair advantage.
"2. Prices can not be kept at fair levels unless production is adjusted to meet market demands. Many farm products are now being produced in quantities in excess of those which the market will take. Higher prices, without regulation of production, would stimulate still more overproduction.
"Any method which provided higher prices and did not include effective regulation of acreage or of quantities sold, or both, would tend to increase the present surplus and soon break down as a result.
"To be of lasting help, any plan must provide a system of effective regulation, so that our millions of farmers can plan and adjust their production on a dependable basis, instead of competing blindly with each other."

Lady Astor Has Talk with Hoover

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Viscountess Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne of Virginia, yesterday had a talk with President Hoover that was "most interesting" and him philosophical as usual.

Accompanied by her husband, and Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, Lady Astor chatted with the President for nearly 15 minutes.

Asked about the interview, Lady Astor bowed silently and pointed to Sir Ronald.

"But Lady Astor did all the talking," said the tall Ambassador, with a smile.

Asked if war debts were discussed, the Englishwoman by marriage replied smiling.

"He said he knew nothing about them. Is that not right, Sir Ronald?"

"Yes, I think that's right," the Ambassador replied.

"Our talk was informal—quite," Lady Astor said.

Miss Gladys Marth Entertains S. S. Class

Miss Gladys Marth entertained Miss Wahnke's Sunday school class of the Methodist church at her home Tuesday evening. The class is making pillows for the Peak Orphanage. The officers for the class are as follows:

String, Bone, And Even Wood Blocks Used By Paris To Trim New Costumes

By RITA FERRIS (Associated Press Fashion Editor)

Paris —(AP)—String, bone and blocks of wood appear as trimming bits on the newest clothes designed by Vera Bora.

Blossoms of knitted string for sports suits, little white bone "stirrup" fasteners, and clips closing with wooden bars are all used as unusual trims on the slim sample silhouette which she sponsors.

Two or three colors generally are combined in the trim wool ensembles shown for daytime wear. A slim coat of olive green wool colored in leopard is worn with a plain green skirt and a soft yellow blouse topped with a tangerine scarf.

A tangerine wool frock has a pull-through angora scarf of gray banded in chocolate brown.

Fur and leather waistcoat jacket ets are another new trick. A belted brown wool coat collared in baby seal appears with a brown wool skirt and a vest made of the baby seal, while a beige wool ensemble has a similar waistcoat of brown leather.

Coque fabrics the new quilted materials with uneven surface giving a "blistered" effect are widely used for both formal and everyday wear, wools and silk crepes appearing in this weave. Colors shown in the new collection stress scarlet, brick, olive green, black, white, cobalt blue and raw corn (a pale yellow.)

Evening dinner frocks are built on the simplest of lines, their chief trim being new dull sequins which lack the glitter of the classic variety. A dinner frock of cobalt blue crepe has for its only trim a pointed belt of dull blue sequins.

simple. It will consist of the one art expression-form which Mrs. Johnson says displays least European influence and more indigenous spirit than any other American pressed glass.

The exhibit will include about 200 choice pieces from her collection of some 2,000, many of them of great historical value and a large proportion of them heirlooms. She has been collecting it from childhood.

Pressed glass manufacture in the United States began in 1825, Mrs. Johnson said, and makers early turned for designs to native subjects. One striking type, for instance, is the "picket-fence" pattern, in which the essential lines of the old-fashioned fence including the nail-heads, are woven around bowls and dishes into a unique decorative scheme.

Coiffure Tricks For the Blondes

Blondes can afford to be very experimental in their coiffures this year.

For blonde heads take naturally to curls, waves, rolls and puffs.

If you are very young and very blonde and have a slender neck and pert, cute face, you can do wonders with your hair.

If it is fine and soft, try the experiment of having a little fringe of curls standing up about the top of your head, like an intriguing little halo, comb back the rest of your hair up off your ears with only the bottoms showing and repeat the row of curls at the nape of your neck, all neatly curled up.

If your hair is coarse and naturally wavy, have the top part waved in soft, flat waves so that it gives the appearance of a cap. Part it on the right side and let the temple have a couple of little waves that are almost curls.

Then work on your hair until you achieve a little edge of ringlets to that waved cap! Work on your hair is the best advice to anyone this year. It must look well-groomed, sleek and soft. It must have a restrained look, as if you had it whipped into beautiful shape.

If your hair is stringy, get a permanent. There is no other answer to life's greatest problem. Get one that you can set yourself, and set it.

If your blonde hair is thick and handsome, you can get this year's smart effect by having it cut right. This means thinning it in just the right place, usually to give a two-storied effect at the sides and, to be very, very chic this winter, a two-storied effect in the back.

Have both the top story and the bottom either turned up or turned under of curled in little flat ringlets. And part it where it does most for your nose and face. This season it usually is somewhere on the right side, if that suits your features.

Miss Graff Entertained Missionary Circle Monday Eve

Monday evening, Miss Evelyn Graff, entertained the Young People's Missionary Circle of the Christian church at her home in Grand Detour.

Lucille Rhodes, president, called the meeting to order and the business period was opened with The World Fellowship Hymn. The invocation was given by Mrs. Hall. The roll call was read, twelve visitors reported present. Treasurer's report for the first half of the year was given. The reading by the members during the month was reported, two books and five World Calls, "My Purpose and My Record for the Month", were read and checked. It was requested by the president that all members be present at church Sunday to hear Miss Helen Spaulding, a missionary worker.

"The Way of Sacrifice" was the theme of the worship period led by Ethel Seyster. Gladys Kime gave the Scripture reading: Isaiah 9:2-7, Isaiah 11:9 and Micah 4:2-4. An interesting talk was given by the leader, The prayer hymn, Silent Night, Holy Night, closed the period.

The presentation period consisted of two talks, "Can We Unite for Peace?" by Verda Padgett, and "Youth and World Peace" by Ruth Smith.

The circle benediction closed the meeting.

Miss Leona Ort accompanied by Miss Helen McGonigle at the piano, delightfully sang "By the Waters of Minnetonka." Following the serving of delicious refreshments by the hostess, a social hour was very much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerz entertained the young folks with a ride about Dixon and vicinity, and also entertained them at their home. R. P. Whitney, father of the trio, an accomplished musician is now playing at a Chicago theater. He and Mr. Kerz are old time friends, residing in Mt. Carroll. Mr. Whitney lived many years when a young man in Mt. Carroll, then studying music. He went abroad with the famous old-time

A CURIOUS CRUISE.

Apparently the only difference between hard work and recreation is that the former is something you have to do for a living and the latter is something you do just for the fun of it.

In a dockyard at Alameda, Calif., the ancient bark, Star of England, is being refitted for a trip to the south seas. She will sail, presently, with a peculiar crew—some three score men and women who have deserted their ordinary jobs and are going to make a cruise on a windjammer in order, as the novelists used to say, "to get away from it all."

Most of the time these folk are lawyers, dentists, writers, engineers and what-not; on the cruise they will be ordinary seamen, toiling away at the age-old tasks of setting sails, scrubbing and caulking decks, splicing ropes and so on. They expect to have a whale of a good time, and it is not at all hard to envy them their lot.

But it is a trifle odd to find life aboard a wind-jammer becoming the goal of vacation-seekers. If ever, in the race's long history of toil, there was a hard, wearing job it was the job that the old-time sailor had.

The years have thrown a mantle of romance over that old-time calling. It belongs to the past, and like other relics of the past it looks prettier at a distance than it ever did at close range.

The books that have been written by men who went to sea under canvas leave little room for doubt. Those surpassingly beautiful ships that took the ocean winds with sunlight tinting their sails were all too often very good imitations of hell afloat for the men who manned them. On even the best of them there was an abundance of danger, a tremendous amount of back-breaking hard work, and minor irritants such as wet sleeping quarters, bad food and iron-handed discipline.

Sailors went to sea to earn a living, and most of the fine phrases about the "romance of the sea" were written by landmen. But now the old sailing ships are little more than a memory—and the sailor's life has become a species of vacation for ardent romanticists. What, do you suppose, are the leathery spectres in Davy Jones' locker saying about it all?

REPEAL AND RACKETEERING.

Both friends and foes of national prohibition ought to get their heads together this fall to consider the disturbing reports that are coming out of New York and Chicago—reports that the under-world gangs of those cities are making elaborate preparations to control the distribution of beer, if and when the sale of that beverage becomes legal.

Here is a challenge to the nation which cannot possibly be ignored.

It is fair to say that a great part of the shift in sentiment about prohibition is due to the activities of the gangs. Many people who believe in prohibition in principle as strongly as ever have turned toward repeal in the hope that gangsterism can thereby be curbed.

Whatever the solution to the prohibition problem, it must be one that will leave the gangs entirely out in the cold. If it doesn't it won't be worth the paper it is written on.

DEATH ON THE GRIDIRON.

Last winter some extensive changes were made in the football rules in the hope that the dismaying toll of deaths taken by the game could be reduced. To date a preliminary survey of the situation shows that the changes have done a good deal of good. We have had, to be sure, more than a dozen football deaths, but the number is far below the number recorded at this time last year.

An odd part of it, however, lies in the fact that nearly all of the fatal ties this year have befallen high school and sandlot players. The collegians have contributed but one death to the tragic list. The younger players do not seem to have been protected by the changes nearly as much as the older ones.

Why should this be? Is football, after all, a game for the fully-developed and highly-trained player, and for no one else? Here is a matter that ought to engage the most earnest study of the rules committee this winter.

Without going into military sanctions we all agree that the criminal must be cast away from the life of civilized nations, a boycott of the aggressor must be organized, and this means that we are asking the United States to renounce the old idea of freedom of the seas.—Professor Andre Philip, representing France at the annual International Good-will Congress in N. Y.

We bemoan the existence of poverty and then spend more energy dispensing charity than we spend establishing justice and economic efficiency.—Dr. Glenn Frank, president, University of Wisconsin.

I have no more intention of retiring than I did when I was 10 years old.—Henry Ford, 69-year-old Detroit motor magnate.

There are stranger fish in the sea than have ever been caught.—Zane Grey, author and sportsman.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY. THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

When all the Tynmites had dropped down to their knees the week king hopped upon his feet and shouted, "Welcome, my Tynmites. Welcome here!"

"The fact that you have called on me has made me happy as can be. Just make yourselves at home, lads. There is not a thing to fear."

"Oh, thank you, king," brave Scouty cried, as he walked to the week king's side. "You see, we travel everywhere to see what we can see."

"This is the finest place we've been. It thrilled us when we all walked in. You live here all the time. Oh, my, how happy you must be!"

At first the king smiled. Then he sighed. "Well, I don't know, lad," he replied. "I have a lot of worries and but little time for play."

"I dare not let things go amiss, as ruler of a land like this. However, I think I will loaf and roam with you today," cried Duncy.

"Lead us, please, around the palace. We won't tease to stay in one place very long. We'll do just as you ask."

The king then said, "Well, follow me. Already I am feeling free. Just walking round and loafing really is an easy task."

They walked a little ways and then the Tynmites were startled when a funny little fellow came running down a hall.

"I am the jester of the court," he shouted. "And I have real sport. Look out for my balloon, lads. I am going to pop you all."

"The big balloon was on a stick. It was a very simple trick to swing it 'round and swat the Tynmites. Duncy shouted, 'Go!' 'He's clever, 'cause he surely knows how to pop me on the nose.' The little king of Weeland stood nearby and laughed in glee. Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc. (Duncy surprises the court jester in the next story.)

Latest American-Built Ship Launched

New Grace Line Ship the "Santa Elena" and Miss Elise Grace. The "Santa Elena" is the last of the four new five million dollar Grace liners.

THE latest American-built ship to slide down the ways is the "Santa Elena," last of the four new $5,000,000 Grace liners. She was launched November 30th at the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. yards in Kearney, N. J.

Miss Elise Grace, attractive daughter of William Russell Grace, director of W. R. Grace & Co., smashed the christening bottle across the prow of the trim new ship.

Miss Grace is the granddaughter of William R. Grace, who, almost three quarters of a century ago founded the company bearing his name—an organization closely allied with the shipping industry ever since the days when the old square-rigged "Down Easters" sailed the seas and the voyage between New York and San Francisco required almost four months.

The finishing of the "Santa Elena" completes the $20,000,000 construction program carried out by the Grace Line under the provisions of the Jones White Merchant Marine Act of 1928.

This proud new liner slid down her greased cradle into the Hackensack River just four days after her sister ship, the "Santa Rosa," set out from New York, on November 26th, on her maiden voyage to Havana, Panama, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mexico, California, Victoria, B. C., and Seattle, Washington.

The "Santa Elena," as well as her three sister ships, will have one of the most complete radio equipments ever installed on an ocean liner. Throughout the entire 14,000-mile voyage between our Eastern and Western seaboard, these four fast Grace liners will be able to draw from a constant flow of radio programs originating in the United States and in foreign countries by means of a long and short wave receiving apparatus controlled from a single centralized operating panel.

From this control panel, program will be distributed to loud-speakers located throughout the ship. An automatic electric phonograph will also provide selected music from a record library through the same centralized sound distributing system. Wherever possible, loudspeakers have been built into the bulkheads to conform with the elaborate decorative schemes of the living rooms, dining rooms, swimming pools and private suites. Loud speakers can be controlled either individually or centrally.

The four new ships will also be furnished with the most modern sound motion picture equipment which makes possible the showing of the latest "talkies."

Famous Clown Warns Against Yuletide Fires

Aimed at preventing a recurrence of the many Christmas holiday fire tragedies of the past, "Smoky" Rogers, famous fire clown known to school children everywhere, as well as to radio listeners, has just issued the following warnings for Yuletide:

Only metal tinsel, flake asbestos, powdered mica or other non-inflammable material should be used on the Christmas tree.

Curtains, drapes and shades should not be allowed to come in contact with illuminating devices.

Insulation of temporary wiring installed during the holiday season in connection with decorations should be carefully inspected, to make certain it is in perfect condition.

Under no circumstances should package wrappings be allowed to accumulate in the home. All such material should be promptly disposed of, and not left lying around loosely, as is frequently done.

More than ordinary care should be exercised in setting up and decorating the Christmas tree, which should be firmly set in a stand, so that it will not easily topple over.

Carefully wired electric lights should be used to illuminate the tree, which should be located at a safe distance from a stove or a fireplace.

Cotton trimming and cotton whiskered Santa Claus are very dangerous, many fires having occurred when the cotton became ignited through coming in contact with an open flame.

Santa Claus suits and whiskers can be rendered fire-resistant by dipping in or spraying with a 15 per cent solution of sulphate of ammonia.

If a fire extinguisher is not available, a bucket of water or a pail of sand, with which to smother an incipient blaze, should be in a convenient place, should an emergency arise.

A lighted Christmas tree should never be left unguarded, as a short circuit or other mishap may cause a fire at any time.

The Christmas tree should be promptly removed from the home when it has served its purpose, and in all cases, before it becomes dry, as should all material used for decorative purposes.

As a project of club work in aiding war veterans' Christmas work it was voted to cooperate with the local Legion Auxiliary Unit in sending candy to veterans in the North Chicago Hospital any members of the club who wish to contribute candy may leave it at Kelley's store not later than Dec. 13 as the Unit wishes to pack it at their regular meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 14.

A mid-winter social will be planned by the social committee in place of the regular January meeting and will be announced later.

The program of the day was in charge of Mrs. Sunday, and the topic for discussion was "Muscle Shoals" and everyone in attendance felt that the paper she wrote as well as the articles she read from various sources were most interesting and they will surely provoke a keener interest in such projects throughout our nation.

Class Party

Dorothy Pyle entertained the members of the Sunbeam class of the Presbyterian Sunday school and their teacher, Miss Blanche Colwell at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pyle, Saturday afternoon. The meeting was opened by the president, Mary Kness read the minutes and called the roll, after which Dorothy Pyle read the scripture lesson. The Lord's prayer was repeated by the class. It was decided to send toys to Chicago. The afternoon was spent in playing games which was Bunco, Betty Bittendorf being the winner of the prize. Refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches, pickles and cocoa, jello and whipped cream. The next meeting will be held the first Saturday in January at the home of Frances Ramsdell, south of town. Three visitors were present, Jean Miller, Ida Warrenfeltz and Betty Bittendorf.

Hunger Marchers Routed by Tear Gas

Subdued by tear gas after an outbreak in Wilmington, Del., members of the "hunger marchers" enroute to Washington are shown at top leaving an old church where they had been quartered. About 1200 men and women were in this contingent, which left 24 of its members under arrest in Wilmington. Below is a "field hospital" set up by doctors and nurses accompanying the caravan. The women patients were alleged to have been overcome by tear gas during the rioting.

MOTORISTS ARE FORGETFUL ON RURAL HI-WAYS

Accident Rate Is Higher On Country Roads Than In Cities

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(Special)—The habit too many automobile drivers have of leaving care and caution behind them at the city limits is partially blamed for the high traffic death rate in rural areas by the National Safety Council in a recently released report of its committee on rural highway hazards.

There were 30.6 traffic deaths per 100,000 population in rural districts last year, the report points out, as contrasted with 22.5 in urban areas. Traffic engineering and enforcement are on a higher plane in cities and this is reflected in the lower urban death rate.

"Many drivers have slack and wild driving habits or dangerous traffic complexes," says the report, "and little or nothing is done about them. When they get out upon the open highway they release all pent-up desires to exercise the complete freedom of movement and speed which constant police supervision and traffic congestion in the cities has suppressed."

Only Themselves To Blame
That such drivers upon reaching a good highway feel free to express themselves by wild or inattentive driving seems to be borne out by the fact that 37 per cent of the mishaps on rural highways involves only one driver, who drives off the road, turns over, or runs into some fixed object. In urban areas this type of casualty amounts to only nine per cent of the total—one quarter as great a proportion."

Fatigue and failure to be alert are also common causes of rural highway accidents according to the report. The steady drone of a motor on a straight, smooth highway hour after hour tends to induce sleep. Drivers are discouraged by the committee from attempting long cross-country trips alone without relief.

Certain physical features of highway design contribute greatly to the hazards of rural highway driving. These, according to the report, are curves at hilltops with inadequate sight distances, long steep grades, blind corners, "death curves" narrow roads and bridges, grade crossing, high crowns, roads without shoulders and the like.

Other important factors are the increasing use of buses and "huge freight trains" on rural highways, the lack of sufficient artificial lighting, the lack of sidewalks or paths for pedestrians, and congestion around roadside stands.

Denounce "Sunday Drivers"
The committee blames the "Sunday driver" as much as the speeder for those accidents which occur because of the traffic volume on week ends and holidays. Most motorists, says the report, when operating under any given set of driving conditions, will drive within five miles an hour of the average speed. The few who drive much slower or much faster than this general pace are those who cause passing and overtaking accidents. The large number of cars moving at normal speed are forced to pass the slow driver; the fast driver must use excessive speed to pass the traffic moving at a normal pace.

The report was issued after a two years study on the part of a committee of traffic and safety experts working under the chairmanship of Clarence P. Taylor, traffic engineer for the Massachusetts Department of Public Works.

POETS' CORNER

AN HONORED LEGISLATOR
(Attorney John P. Devine)
There is a man who is renowned—
Folks like him all around the town
Both near and far his fame has spread.
His speeches almost wake the dead.

So tall of stature; broad at brim;
So saturated strong with vim.
Apollo ne'er would have a chance.
He towers above all circumstance.

Yet still, with all his power and pomp,
He likes to take time out to romp.
It's great to see him, when a joke
Creates a smile, a laugh, a choke.

A faithful, famous Democrat
From tip of toe to crown of hat;
And when there's any voting done,
It's safe to gamble that he won.

Republicans are also free
To say good things of J. P. D.;
And many times they leave their ranks
To vote for him and give him
thanks.

He always wins, no matter when;
He's always up at count of ten;
Down there at Springfield, where he goes,
He does the duty that he knows.

Sometimes sedate, when thoughts
ar deep;
His mind awake, when he's asleep
You never find him in the wrong
His office-holding lease is long.

In legislature, or in court,
He proves himself an honest sport;
A fellow, full of fervent zeal
To give to all a worthy deal.
—Bela R. Halderman,
Franklin Grove, Ill.

CONFLICTS MAY DELAY SENATE REPEAL ACTION

Judiciary Committee Sentiment For Several Provisions

Washington, Dec. 7. —(AP)—The overwhelming sentiment of the Senate Judiciary committee, where the fate of prohibition repeal legislation at present rests, is for submission of a repeal amendment with protection for dry states.

A check of the members showed this today, revealing also a close division of opinion over whether to include some clause to prevent return of the saloon. This fore shadowed a conflict which may block the plans of Senate leaders for prompt disposal of the repeal problem.

Although some members of the committee were non-committal on the form the resolution should take, and two have not yet returned, the sentiment of the others indicated the manner in which the question is likely to be submitted to the Senate.

To Meet Monday
To the Judiciary committee, the Senate has assigned the task of studying and reporting on the various repeal resolutions now pending. Chairman Norris has announced it will take up the problem next Monday.

Not a single member said he would press for outright repeal in the form which the House rejected Monday, though several indicated they would not oppose it.

A majority, however, indicated they would vote for outright repeal if forced to a choice between this or nothing.

A brief synopsis of the views expressed, follows:

Chairman Norris — Against submission, against ban on the saloon, would favor broad protection for dry states.

Borah (R. Idaho) — Same, except will demand strict protection for dry states.

Robinson (R. Ind.) — Against submission, but for both substitutes—ban on saloons and dry state protection—rather than outright repeal.

Blaine (R. Wis.) — For repeal with provision for regulation of interstate liquor to protect dry states and yet allow wet states to get it.

Hastings (R. Del.) — For submission, with the substitutes if possible.

Hebert (R. R. I.) — For submission. Has stood on the Republican platform.

Schall (R. Minn.) — For submission, with the substitutes.

Austin (R. Vermont) — For submission as called for by his state platform.

Ashurst (D. Ariz.) — For submission, believes Glass resolution carrying substitutes in compliance with party platforms.

Walsh (D. Mont.) — For submission, no comment on details.

King (D. Utah) — Favors repeal but believes Glass resolution will have more chance of approval.

Stephens (D. Miss.) — Absent but voted to consider Glass resolution at last session.

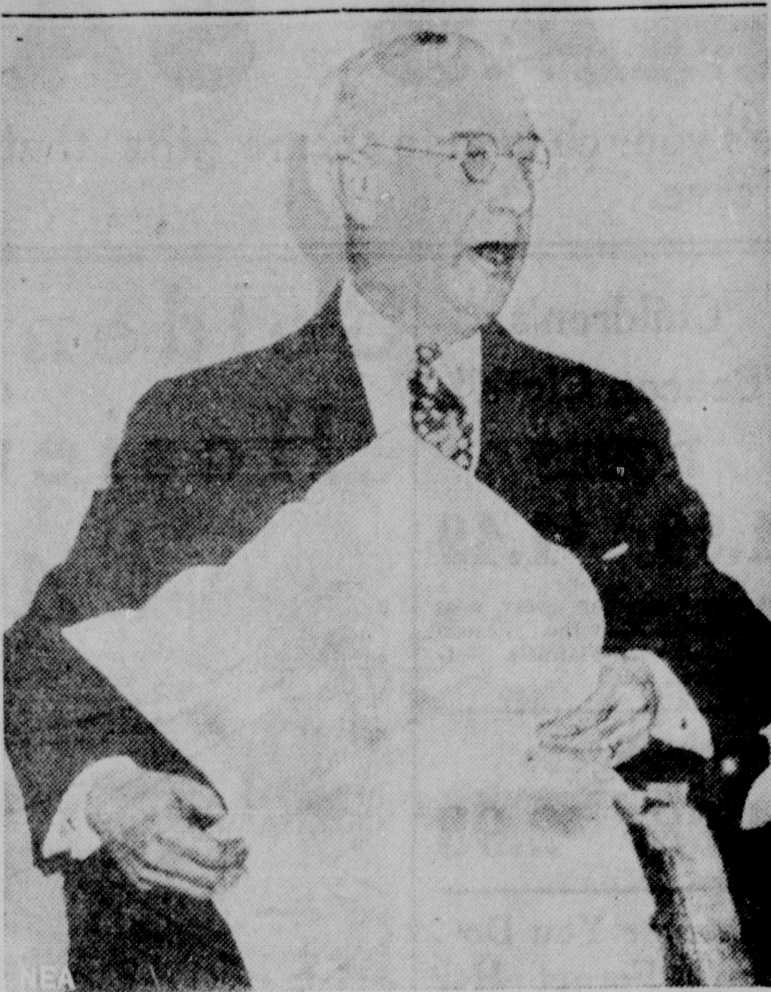

Dill (D. Wash.) — For submission, but mind not made up on details.

Bratton (D. N. M.) — Absent, but recorded in favor of considering Glass resolution.

Black (D. Ala.) — For submission but no comment on details.

Neely (D. W. Va.) — For submission, no comment on details.

Al Smith Strikes a Blow at Political Patronage

In the role of government reformer rather than politician, former Governor Alfred E. Smith is shown above telling the state legislative committee in New York that the city government should be unified under one control rather than the present system of five borough operations. In his hands you see the charts from which he detailed his comprehensive plan under which nearly 100 elected officials would leave their posts.

ROOSEVELT TO RESUME DUTIES AS A GOVERNOR

Returning To Albany For Session N. Y. Legislature

Aboard Roosevelt Train Enroute to New York, Dec. 7. —(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt thrust aside the role of President-elect today to return to that of Governor of New York with a special session of the state legislature opening Friday.

Behind him as he sped northward was almost two weeks of study given to farm relief and budgetary problems in conferences with more than a dozen members of Congress, each of whom brought his own ideas of what the Democratic program should include.

Out of the conferences came the impression gained by some that farm relief and budgetary legislation formed the foundation stones of a program of legislation which would result in a special session of Congress early in the new administration if it failed of enactment in the present short session.

The failure of the 18th Amendment repeal resolution in the House also caused some of those familiar with the conferences to believe there probably would be a special session.

Roosevelt followed a route that took him through Washington in the early afternoon and called for his arrival tonight in New York City.

The first year of married life is according to an English expert, very trying on the nerves, a state of affairs which continues until the young family begins to appear.

FARMERS RALLY FORCES TO PUT WISH IN RECORD

Converge In Capital To Press Demands On Congress

Washington, Dec. 7. —(AP)—More than 200 overland dirt farmers rallied their forces here today to seek aid from a Congress in which Democratic leaders were prepared to launch President-elect Roosevelt's farm relief principles.

Brought mostly in their own automobiles and sleeping in a tourist camp, the representatives of those who participated in the Iowa Farmers' "strike" set as the goal of their Farmers National Relief Conference a moratorium on agricultural debts and a cost-of-production price for crops.

Similar objectives, if through varying means, occupied legislators at both ends of the Capitol, with the domestic allotment views of Governor Roosevelt predominating discussions. Fully advised of his party leader's wishes, Chairman Jones of the House Agriculture committee said he had a bill near completion which would attempt to give farmers the tariff benefits on their crops.

"But I will not introduce it until after conferring in detail with leaders of the organized farm groups," Jones said, referring principally to Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, and L. J. Taber, Master of the National Grange, both of whom have voiced approval of the Domestic allotment plan, and to John A. Simpson, head of the Farmers National Union.

Brief Summary of Last Night's News

ILLINOIS

By The Associated Press
Chicago—A landlord was near death here after being stabbed by a tenant when he called to collect the rent. James Hartsook, 40, of suburban Blue Island, said his assailant was Michael Martino. The attack occurred he said, after Martino invited him into the house and turned off the lights.

Champaign—A drastic reduction of one-half the cost of the federal government by an "aroused, intelligent, militant public" is the only cure for present national conditions, Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, told a Community Forum audience here.

Chicago—Don't point your finger at Frank de Stefano. He was being held in the county jail on a charge of mayhem for biting three-quarters of an inch off the index finger of Anthony Pecora.

Wheaton — A pavement made slippery by rain caused an automobile to skid from a highway into a ditch, resulting in the death of Winfield L. Houran, 37, attorney for the Public Service Company of Illinois and receiver for the Lombard State Bank.

Chicago—The $3,000,000 Continental Illinois Bank & Trust Company embezzler, Walter J. Wolf, was still serving his ten consecutive one to ten year sentences following dismissal of his release plea on a writ of habeas corpus. His attorneys argued that sentences such as his can not be made to run consecutively.

Cambridge, Mass. — Scholarships worth $375 apiece were awarded six Illinois residents by the Harvard Corporation for the Harvard Law School. Winners are Frank J. Delaney, Jr., Richard S. Grossman, Charles R. Kaufman and Richard J. Merrick. Chicago; Edward A. Haight, Rockford, and Robert W. Murphy, Geneseo.

THAT'S A FOWL TRICK
Tocoma, Wash. — Many people were amused the other morning to see several roosters chasing a diminutive bantam rooster up and down the street. They finally arrested the fowl and took it to the police station to try to establish its identity. Two men Harry Shaner and A. O. Patterson recognized the rooster as one belonging to one of Shaner's neighbors. The chicken had ridden to town on the axle of Shaner's new automobile.

The State Board of Health sent its officers to investigate and all indications point to a speedy resumption of school duties. Since no outbreak occurred in the high school, those classes have continued.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gibson of Madison Wis., were guests of relatives in the vicinity over the week end.

William Lunde, tenant on the Nancy Paddock farm, moves to the farm which Hiram Gelken leaves this week.

A short-horn steer owned by Leslie Ludwig placed second in class at the International stock show in Chicago.

Mrs. Florence Tilton will be hostess December 9 to the Pine Rock Woman's Club. The program for this date has been changed. Instead of the book review by Mrs. Mildred Clover, Mrs. Margaret Grieve of Rochelle will address the club.

These cases ask the setting of permanent rates by the commission and approval of contracts for purchase of gas from the Indiana Consumers Gas & By-Products Company. Continuance was granted by decision of the commission in the case now under advisement, regarding the price to be paid by the distributing companies for gas for all Illinois municipalities.

Citations against four bus companies was also continued until December 20, on information that the companies had applied for necessary insurance. Companies involved were the Terre Haute & Western Bus Line, Tri State Bus Co., Springfield-Taylorville Bus Line and Decatur Bus Lines.

INSUFFICIENT VOCAB.

Los Angeles — One would think that a professor of languages could find a better name to call his wife than a lemon. When Lena Rice, 52, former U. S. Government secret service agent, was seeking a divorce from Professor William R. Rice, she testified that he called her a lemon. "What did you do?" asked Judge William S. Baird. "I told him he was a big prune," answered Mrs. Rice. "Well then, I think you are about even," commented the judge.

CHILDREN LIKE THESE

If you have a hard time getting your children into rainy day attire, give them each a new cork belt, like this one, and see how quickly they grab at a chance to wear it.

You make these belts by string-ing ordinary little corks on heavy bright red twine, knotting the twine between each cork. Use either a cork buckle, which you can buy, for fastening or you can substitute a wooden buckle for the one of cork.

NO MORE GAS IN STOMACH AND BOWELS

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baalman's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalman's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. PARTY LEADERS' VIEWS ON PRES. MESSAGE GIVEN

Conflicting Opinions On Hoover Proposals Reported

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—President Hoover's message to Congress evoked a whirl of conflicting comment, Republicans in general giving it high praise and some Democrats assailing it with vigor.

The sales tax recommendation was cited, the varied comments being reminiscent of the stubborn debate which preceded defeat of such a measure in the House last year.

Representative Snell, the Republican leader, seconded the tax proposal, and agreed heartily on the sentiments for cutting federal spending.

"The outstanding recommendation," he said, "is changes in the fundamental banking laws of the country. Experience of the last three years demonstrates it is needed."

"I am especially interested in the statement on reduced government expenditures. If Congress follows his recommendations, the people will get what they want. I am in entire accord with his position on a limited manufacturers' sales tax. We ought to have passed it last year. His statement on economic conditions should be studied by every business man in the country."

Speaker Garner withheld comment until he had a chance to read the message, but he asked newspaper men "does he recommend any revenue from beer?"

Told no, he had nothing to say. Later, he said "there are quite a number of the President's suggestions I am sure we are all in agreement with—the question of reduction of the cost of government and the desirability of balancing the budget."

Representative Mapes (R. Mich.): "I am in general sympathy with the recommendation for a sales tax, exempting necessities."

Representative Hawley, ranking Republican on the Ways and Means committee:

"It is a fine summary of the situation. Banking legislation certainly should be proceeded with. I favor the sales tax in the last session."

Chairman Collier of the House Ways and Means committee where any additional tax legislation would originate, said he felt "there is little chance of success for the sales tax recommendations."

Senator Watson, Republican leader: "The message deals with the questions that require solution at the hands of this Congress."

Senator Copeland, (D. N. Y.), a doctor, took issue with the President's observations on the health of the nation.

Senator Smoot, (R. Utah): "It was a wonderful message. There

Klan Gathers as "Hunger Marchers" Start Siege

The Virginia hills across the Potomac from Washington saw the white uniforms of the Ku Klux Klan and the flame of burning crosses as groups of "hunger marchers" approached the capital. Klan leaders announced they were mobilizing to prevent marchers from approaching Washington through Virginia.

need or no misunderstanding about what was dealt with in it and I hope Congress will have enough wisdom to follow it out."

Senator Reed, (R. Pa.): "It was an excellent message. I am particularly glad to see the President renew his recommendation for a sales tax."

Senator Dill, (D. Wash.): "Fortunately we have a new President because the old one has nothing to offer except a sales tax which puts more burdens on the poor."

Representative Byrns (D. Tenn.), chairman of the Appropriations committee: "It appears that he made a pretty good effort to bolster up what he has been trying to do, but I think the country passed on that in November."

Chairman Rankin of the House Veterans committee:

"I am disappointed in the President's message. He did not touch on currency expansion, to my mind, the only solution of our economic difficulties. I also oppose his sales tax recommendations."

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader:

"With respect to that part of the message which relates to the banking system, the recommendations of the President are discouragingly general and indefinite."

"References to economy prompt the reflection that it is regrettable that the President should have waited until near the end of his administration to discuss the possibility of retrenchment in a number of spheres of federal action so as to establish a proper proportion between revenues and expenditures."

Kewanee Girl In Trouble In Colo.

Boulder, Colo., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Mary Rose Calhoun, 22, who said she was the daughter of a prominent Kewanee, Ill., furniture dealer, was being held here today after pleading guilty yesterday to a charge of forgery.

She was arrested with Glenn J. Waddill, 33, son of J. T. Waddill, Chairman of the Missouri Tax Commission. The younger Waddill also pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery and was sentenced to serve from two to ten years in the state penitentiary.

Judge C. C. Coffin deferred sentencing the young woman until December 13, saying: "I confess I don't know what to do with you." Waddill claimed she was his wife, but officers said they learned he had a wife and child in Jefferson City, Mo.

Bans Rouge And Eye Shadow for The Young Girl

Young girls are constantly asking me what nourishing creams, eye shadow, rouges and lipsticks to use.

Personally, I think any girl not yet 20, should use only the last!

There is such charm in firm, fresh-cheeked youth that it is a crime, I think, to detract from it by too much make-up or worry about it with too many creams.

Lipstick is something else again. Given just a touch of lipstick and the freshest looking girl looks just that much more attractive.

Usually a girl under 20 can stand a clear, ruddy red lipstick. If she is the sun-tanned type, she should beware of the blue-reds; those are for real brunettes with fair skin. She should use the reds with tawny tones to them. They blend with her skin.

If a girl has red hair, she must try out her lipstick carefully. Often her very fair skin calls for a very clear red lipstick which will, if it is the right shade, look well with her hair, too. Often she finds that she with tawny tones looks better with her hair.

The young girl should look to keeping her skin absolutely clean and clear. Nights she should scrub her face, with a little face brush and soft, warm water with a good, bland soap. Rinse carefully, pat with cold water and give it just a touch of night cream.

It is a mistake to massage the very young face. It doesn't need it. Just keep it nice and clean and powdered with a soft coating and heaven knows Nature does the rest for girls this age.

Eye shadow is an abomination for the very young girl. Her eyes should look at you with the clear, straight gaze of youth and should need no help from the paint pot. Her eyebrows may need a bit of tanning. Perhaps a few stray ones above and below the main arch should be plucked.

But the girl under 20 should pay full attention to her coiffure, her face usually will take care of itself.

Economic and Joyous Treat For The Little Folks

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

Simple little cookies that are easy to make and economical as to materials are splendid to serve with afternoon tea when friends drop in informally. Snickerdoodles have a most intriguing name to begin with and have a delicious spicy taste to end with.

Snickerdoodles

One cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 1-2 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1-2 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup light brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon.

Beat egg until light, beating in granulated sugar and softened butter. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add alternately with milk to first mixture. Stir in raisins and drop by teaspoonfuls onto oiled and floured tins. Mix brown sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle thickly over cookies. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

Shortbread

One cup butter, 1-2 cup confectioners' sugar, 2 cups bread flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, blanched almonds.

Cream butter and add sugar gradually. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and add to first mixture. Mix thoroughly and shape into two rolls about the size of a silver dollar. Chill for two or three hours. Cut in slices about one-fourth inch thick and put half an almond on each slice. Bake in a slow oven for twenty to twenty-five minutes or until a pale straw color.

Peanut Cookies

Two tablespoons butter, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 cup flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons milk, 1-2 cup chopped peanuts, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, few drops vanilla.

Cream butter and beat in sugar. Add two tablespoons sifted flour. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt and baking powder. Add well beaten egg to first mixture. Mix well and add flour mixture. Mix and add peanuts, lemon juice and vanilla. Drop from teaspoon onto an oiled and floured baking sheet. Bake fifteen minutes in a slow oven.

Other nuts may be substituted for peanuts but peanuts are very cheap and have a good taste in these cookies.

Illinois Girl In German Opera Debut

Taylorville, Ill., Dec. 7.—Miss Eugenia Vandever, daughter of Mrs. E. A. Vandever of Taylorville, made her debut in German opera the night of Nov. 22, according to information her mother has received. As far as it is known she is the only Illinois girl ever to have been so honored in the music world. Miss Vandever, who will take a role in eleven other operas during the 1932-33 season, sang the role of Liece, a slave girl in "Turandot" one of the latest operas of Puccini. The initial appearance of Miss Vandever cast as the slave girl was in Brienn, Czechoslovakia.

Miss Vandever visited Taylorville last summer and was accompanied by her German voice teacher who continued her voice training even while she was in Ameri-

Epworth League Sponsors Win My Chum" at Methodist

The Epworth League of the First Methodist church is sponsoring a "Win My Chum" week, the purpose being to secure new members. The program was launched Sunday evening and Miss Gotta of the high school faculty was the speaker. Meetings were planned for Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings of this week.

On Monday evening supper was served at the church and a program followed. Anna Malarkey and Gilbert Stansell, Jr., first vice president and assistant respectively, were the host and hostess of the evening. The meeting opened with Helen Marth, president, leading in the League song, "I Would Be True." Anna Malarkey read the scripture lesson and Gilbert Stansell, Jr. led in the Lord's prayer. Rev. Stansell spoke on the subject of the "Win My Chum" week which are based on four principles, love, purity, unselfishness and honesty. He explained the functions of the four departments of vice presidents of the League and closed his interesting remarks by having each of those present read a verse from the 13th chapter of 1 Corinthians. There were 25 young people present, four of whom were new members, the League having gained these at the first meeting of the drive.

On Wednesday evening at 5:30 there will be a meeting with a supper at 6:30 and on Thursday evening a meeting with supper at 5:30 and on Friday at the same hour a weiner roast will be enjoyed at Lowell park. The drive will be closed with the regular meeting of the Epworth League next Sunday evening. All young people of the high school are invited to attend this meeting.

PRODUCTION FIRST PLANNED BY ZIEGFELD IS BROADWAY HIT AFTER HIS DEATH

Katherine Spector... enhancing in "Music in the Air"

Feminine Producer Brings Newest Jerome Kern Show to Rialto

BY GILBERT SWAN
NEA Service Writer

New York—The Viennese-German type of popular operetta, filled with lilting waltz tunes and charmingly refreshing love songs, has become a Broadway musical vogue over night.

Even George Gershwin, who seemed to have dedicated his life to syncopation and dissonances, has gone to work on such a score. One hears that he will have a music show filled with Teutonic songs—perhaps in time to catch up with the future beer trade, if any.

But it's Jerome Kern, that fabulously versatile fellow who can turn out a "Show Boat," a "Cat and the Fiddle" or a "Sweet Adeline," who comes along and presents a "Music in the Air." Don't rush; it will be here when the first crocus bursts through the ground!

Seemingly Kern comes from the same never-never land as Peter Pan, and though the calendar puts his age well beyond the hey-day, he goes on turning out the most delightful musical pieces that New York hears during any season. To his credit, for instance, it may be recorded that "Show Boat" was revived after many a year to win as great applause as ever. In "Music in the Air," Kern seems more youthful than ever—there is laughter and love and gaiety and even Reinhold Werrenrath in this piece. Actors half sing and half recite their lines and the Munich music flows charmingly along.

It has been the good fortune of Miss Peggy Fears and her husband, A. C. Blumenthal, to fall heir to this piece. The late Flo Ziegfeld had ordered it and was preparing to put it on when stricken. Miss Fears, attractive feminine producer who has already had a couple of plays in "the big street," took it over.

Quite outside the merits, which will warble for themselves, this new Alpine-Munich-Bavarian-Viennese invasion is something to check down for future reference. There is going to be a return of the Lehar, Friml.

HOW TAXPAYERS' INCOMES FADED SHOWN BY MILLS

Treasury Department's Report To Congress Gives Figures

Washington, Dec. 5—(AP)—How the income of the nation's taxpayers faded away in 1930 and 1931, swiftly wiping out the government's chief source of revenue and making new taxes mandatory was explained to Congress today in the annual report of Secretary Mills.

The Secretary gave statistics showing that the class of taxpayers who produced 97 per cent of the income tax had sharply diminished. The class is that with incomes of $10,000 or above. In 1928 there were 15,780 taxpayers who had incomes of $10,000 or more while in 1930 there were 6,152 and in 1931 this had dropped to 3,142.

The number of taxpayers in 1931 having incomes of $5,000 or more decreased 27.1 per cent from 1930. The taxes dropped 49.4 per cent, with 556,120 persons paying $233,933,000. The greatest drop was in the $100,000 or more class, which yielded $107,896,000 as compared with $237,716,000 the year previous.

Other Decreases

The Secretary said the net income of persons reporting $5,000 or more had dropped from $16,299,000,000 in 1928 to $10,199,000,000 in 1930 and to $6,489,000,000 in 1931. Income from the sales of real estate stock, etc., dropped from $1,843,000,000 in 1928 to $550,000,000 in 1930 and to $166,000,000 in 1931 while losses deducted increased from $170,000,000 in 1928 to $978,000,000 in 1930 and to $969,000,000 in 1931.

Income from salaries and commissions dropped from $4,700,000,000 in 1928 to $4,159,000,000 in 1930 and to $3,154,000,000 in 1931. Dividends decreased from $3,929,000,000 in 1928 to $3,622,000,000 in 1930 and $3,154,000,000 in 1931. Business and partnerships which reported income of $3,291,000,000 in 1928 decreased to $1,974,000,000 in 1930 and dropped to $1,236,000,000 in 1931.

"Music in the Air" Follows Vogue For German-Viennese Songs

Strauss school of things in even a lighter vein. The recent German picture importations have not been without their influence.

The book, out of Oscar Hammerstein the second, follows an old pattern but is filled with refreshingly new episodes and asides. On the surface it is the old story of musical folk from the mountains who wander into Munich, meet old friends and stumble into great fortune only to learn that they are, after all, yokels and had best go home. Meanwhile a girl and a boy have adventures which all but upset their love life.

The other good news of the week is that Ina Claire is now definitely back in the theater.

She has been absent for some five years in the Hollywood belt, where she became one of the screen's most important players. Recently she decided to return to the theater and came East to be starred in a play which had uncertain experiences in out-of-town tryouts. She walked out of the cast and the Theater Guild waited around the corner with a contract to sign.

So she is now rehearsing S. N. Behrman's latest opus, "Biography" with Phillip Moeller directing.

TREASURY HEAD PUT SALES TAX UP TO CONGRESS

Recommends A General
Manufacturers' Tax
Of 2.25 Per Cent

Washington, Dec. 5—(AP)—The sales tax issue was tossed squarely back into the lap of Congress today by Secretary Mills with a recommendation that a 2 1/2 per cent general manufacturers' levy be adopted.

In his annual report, the Secretary of the Treasury said the present specific excise taxes adopted at the last session of Congress had failed to produce the expected revenue and he proposed their repeal. Mills directly asked the House to reverse itself. Only six months ago that body bolted its leadership to vote down a 1 1/2 per cent sales tax, and the issue was not even brought to a vote in the Senate.

Cut Down Expenses

Drastic reduction in governmental expenditure was insisted upon by the Secretary, who predicted that the present fiscal year would end next June with a deficit of $1,146,000,000 and the following year, at the present pace, with a deficit of $307,000,000 exclusive of debt retirement. He said government spending could be reduced by $479,000,000 in the 1934 fiscal year if recommendations made by the President in his budget message were followed. Mr. Mills asked Congress to retain the one cent a gallon tax on gasoline, which was to be effective only until next June, saying if it was continued to another year it would provide an additional $137,000,000 of revenue, reducing the estimated deficit by that amount. It is not feasible, he said, to provide for resumption of the normal reduction of the public debt in 1934 but urged that otherwise the budget be balanced.

His Recommendation

His recommendation was: "That those excise taxes which experience has demonstrated are relatively unproductive and give rise to serious administrative difficulties be repealed, and that there be imposed a general manufacturers' excise tax substantially in the form appearing in the bill originally reported by the Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives during the last session of Congress."

It is estimated that such a measure with the 2 1/2 per cent rate will yield about $355,000,000, assuming a full year's collections, thus making possible the elimination of a number of unsatisfactory and relatively unproductive new excise taxes. "In view of the misunderstanding as evidenced in the congressional debates of last winter, I must emphasize that I am not recommending a general sales or turnover tax with the inevitable pyramiding of the tax but a manufacturers' excise tax, imposed at one point only."

Two Exceptions

The manufacturers' excise tax bill referred to by Mills levied a tax upon all finished manufactures, excepting only food and moderate priced clothing.

Later other exemptions were added in an effort to win congressional approval.

Mills did not name the new taxes he would like to see repealed but said the taxes on brewers' wort, on bank checks and recreation admissions had produced much less than expected. The Internal Revenue Bureau report he transmitted to Congress said it had been difficult to administer the new taxes on checks, electrical energy, gasoline, lubricating oils, jewelry, furs, toilet articles, sporting goods, soft drinks and brewers' wort.

The Secretary said that while it had been estimated last May that the income of the government for the 1933 fiscal year would amount to $3,098,000,000, revised estimates indicated they would total $2,624,000,000. He said customs duties now were estimated at $200,000,000, a drop of $60,000,000 from the May estimate; income taxes at $860,000,000, a drop of $176,000,000; brewers' wort at $10,000,000, a drop of $72,000,000; bank checks at $45,000,000, a drop of $33,000,000; and admissions at $21,000,000, a decrease of $23,000,000.

Estimated Receipts

Government receipts were estimated for the 1934 fiscal year from all sources at $2,949,162,713 and expenditures at $3,790,425,220, for the present fiscal year he estimated that receipts from all sources would amount to $2,624,256,393 and expenditures to $4,268,838,400.

"However difficult and painful it may be," Mills told Congress, "government expenditures must be drastically cut when, owing to extraordinary circumstances, the government finds that within a comparative short period its revenues have been cut in half with little prospect of substantial improvement in the near future."

Mills recommended that when money advanced to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is repaid it be applied to reduction of the public debt. Such action would reduce by approximately $1,000,000,000 the increase in the public debt in recent years.

SWEET MEDICINE

When he gave himself up recently he was freed by Judge Joseph M. Clifford at the recommendation of Prosecutor W. D. Fogle. He had bummed his way to California and back.

OLD SALEM OF LINCOLN'S DAY REBORN

By NEA Service—

Petersburg, Ill. —On a beautiful desolate bluff above the Sangamon river near here, there is a stirring in the dust. The dead city of New Salem, which was dust, stirs into life again.

New Salem died many years ago soon after Abraham Lincoln left it behind. The rude village of 25 log huts and 100 pioneers declined, vanished, leaving only a grass-grown promontory overlooking the rolling wooded hills, a few decaying sills hidden in the grass, a heap of foundation stones. For ninety years it lay quietly there justifying its name of Salem, which means "peace."

Now it is rising again from its own dust.

The state of Illinois has made of its site a state park, and has now begun a project which will rebuild the little village just as it was in the days when Abe Lincoln in his gawky mid-twenties lounged on the counter of his store with a book, when he wrestled with Jack Armstrong of the Clary Grove Boys, when he walked the rutted streets day-dreaming with beloved Ann Rutledge.

The first building to be rebuilt is the Berry and Lincoln store where, just 100 years ago, Abraham Lincoln took out a license as a tavern keeper, under which he sold liquors at regulated prices.

Mary Gantz, Flo Finkboner, Wilma Weyrick, Grace Clark, Nell Hanley, Frances Halder and Clara Schramm.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Gavin and family were Chicago visitors over the week end, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Al Melgarde.

Attorney W. P. Fearer attended the Memorial services of the B. P. O. Elks at Dixon Sunday.

R. E. Bressler, chief engineer of the Koi Master Corporation, was a business visitor last week in Chicago and also in Hammond, Ind., in the interest of the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Rice, Miss Tillie Frieders of Aurora and Harry Richardson of Montgomery, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Long.

Miss Mary Jeters returned Sunday from a visit of ten days with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. Worsley in Chicago.

Dr. L. E. Hall, who for many years enjoyed a large practice in this section of the country, is reported very ill at the County Home, where he has resided for the past two years.

Miss Augusta Cottlow who now teaches at Pecatonica entertained the following guests from Oregon

New Salem, Ill., the vanished town where Abe Lincoln spent much of his youth, is being rebuilt to look, at top, as it did when Lincoln kept store there. The Lincoln portrait is of the Emancipator as he looked at 27 when he lived in New Salem.

Wednesday evening: Mesdames, Dwight Mackay, Henry Laughlin, Frederick Clifford, Misses Isabelle Cottlow, Mildred Shepherd and Rogene Jones.

Dr. J. M. Beveridge was in attendance Tuesday at a meeting of the North Central Illinois Medical Association at Pontiac, Ill.

John Phelps who has been ill the past ten days is not showing much improvement in condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laughlin were Chicago visitors, Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer I. Steffa of Chicago were visitors with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Allen, Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cleaver of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, spent the week end with relatives and friends in Oregon and Dixon.

Miss Margaret Cooper of Ripley is a guest of Misses Hazel and Violet Wilde.

Misses Sadie Seyster, and Alice Robbins were week end visitors with the former's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Stine.

J. Austin Spoor is ill with pneumonia but is slightly improved in condition.

Dr. L. Warmolts, J. M. Beveridge and G. M. Kolster attended the meeting of the Ogle Co. Medi-

The cornerstone of this building has been laid by Governor Emerson, and on it will rise an exact replica of the 20 by 32-foot log building in which the ill-fated partnership dissolved in Berry's liking for good living and Lincoln's absorption in his books.

Other buildings will be similarly built in accordance with as exact descriptions as history can furnish.

One building, indeed, has survived the decay of New Salem and will be re-erected in its original form. The cooperage shop of Henry Onstatt, where tradition says young Lincoln often lay before a bright fire of shavings and figured on the back of a wooden fire-shovel, did not descend to dust with the rest of New Salem. Onstatt moved it piece by piece to Petersburg and set it up there. Further, he covered it with a board sheathing, which perfectly preserved the split walnut logs. Piece by piece it will be brought back, and set in its former place.

Across the street from the Berry and Lincoln combined grocery store, "tavern" and postoffice, will rise again the Rutledge tavern, a crude two-room affair with a rickety ladder leading to the attic. Here Abe boarded for a while, and here he met Ann Rutledge, the lovely girl whose death left a melancholy man to climb to the presidency and a martyr's death.

of the Mayo Clinic, was the speaker. Dr. Warmolts also attended a meeting of the Aviation Club at which Major Schroeder, manager of the Skyport aviation field in Chicago was the speaker.

Misses Wilma Weyrick, Grace Clark, Vivian Holmes and Laura Wiseman spent the week end in Chicago and attended a musical comedy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Mead were visited Saturday by the latter's sisters, Mrs. Lee Biedgett and Mrs. S. P. Stapleton of Morrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Allen were visitors Sunday with Mrs. Allen's sister and family. Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Lincoln at Stelling.

Mrs. Alan Harnish was hostess Monday evening at a dinner and bridge party.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Leigh entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Barrett and son of Rockford.

Mrs. Mick, matron of the Golden Rule Home, is visiting relatives in Warsaw, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Remington of Mt. Morris were visitors Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Winter.

The ladies of St. Mary's church will hold a sale of baked goods on Saturday in the lobby of the Sinissippi hotel.

MINOR LEAGUE

AILMENTS MAY BE DIAGNOSED

Columbus Meeting Is Expected To Find Needed Remedies

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The thirty first annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues settled down today to the business of prescribing for the minor league ailments.

A committee of five has been working diligently for many months preparing prescriptions, and now the first of these are up for a thorough trashing out, and the committee believes most and probably all of them will be accepted during the three day conference.

Chief among these recommendations is the adoption of a player and salary limit. The passage of this became almost a certainty yesterday when the International League joined the American Association in giving its approval. While the Pacific Coast League remains a holdout on the proposition, it is indicated the majority of smaller circuits will follow the move of the two leaders.

Recalling that last year several minor clubs were compelled to fold up in mid-season because major league clubs withdrew their financial support, the committee has recommended that major league clubs operating farms be required to guarantee their operation for a full season. This is expected to meet little opposition from either the majors or the minors.

The American Association in another meeting this morning planned to iron out its difficulties by finding purchasers for the Toledo and Kansas City clubs.

It was reported late last night that at least three men were in the market for the Mudhens while Lee Keyser, owner of the Des Moines club in the Western circuit, has announced he is willing to buy the Kansas City franchise as soon as the present Board of Directors makes an offer to sell. This offer was expected to be forthcoming today.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

London — It seems that transparency in glass isn't enough for some people. Robert Howden, a British architect, described to the Royal Society of Arts a new visible glass for store windows, pigglass protection is needed but should be invisible. The trick is to round the glass slightly so there is no reflection.

PAT PAGE MAY FOLLOW STAGG AT U. CHICAGO

Old Man's Assistant Reported To Have Inside Track

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—H. O. (Pat) Page, Sr., former University of Chicago star athlete and present assistant to A. A. Stagg, today had become the leading candidate to succeed the "Old Man" as the Maroons' head football coach—as far as reports were concerned.

George Veenker, head coach at Iowa State College under Thomas N. Metcalf, who will replace Stagg as Athletic Director at Chicago next year, is expected to remain at the Iowa institution, having been named to succeed Metcalf, leaving Page as the foremost choice among the guessers.

It also was reported that Jimmy Phelan, who gave Purdue an undisputed gridiron title in 1929, before going to the University of Washington, also was in line for consideration. Phelan has said he would leave Washington if a suitable opportunity were offered.

The Stanford situation, created by the resignation by Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, also still held interest for Western Conference fans, for reports persisted that Dick Hanley, Northwestern's head coach, was under consideration. Hanley said he had not been approached, but admitted he would be interested in the Stanford job if it appeared attractive enough.

Chief among these recommendations is the adoption of a player and salary limit. The passage of this became almost a certainty yesterday when the International League joined the American Association in giving its approval. While the Pacific Coast League remains a holdout on the proposition, it is indicated the majority of smaller circuits will follow the move of the two leaders.

Recalling that last year several minor clubs were compelled to fold up in mid-season because major league clubs withdrew their financial support, the committee has recommended that major league clubs operating farms be required to guarantee their operation for a full season. This is expected to meet little opposition from either the majors or the minors.

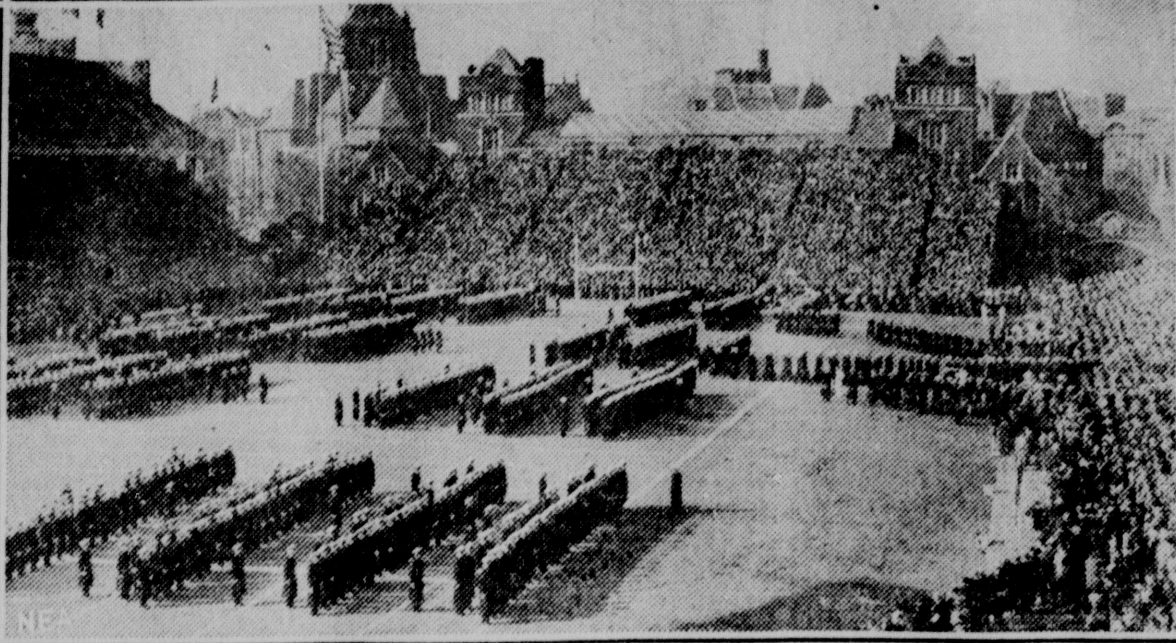

The American Association in another meeting this morning planned to iron out its difficulties by finding purchasers for the Toledo and Kansas City clubs.

It was reported late last night that at least three men were in the market for the Mudhens while Lee Keyser, owner of the Des Moines club in the Western circuit, has announced he is willing to buy the Kansas City franchise as soon as the present Board of Directors makes an offer to sell. This offer was expected to be forthcoming today.

London — It seems that transparency in glass isn't enough for some people. Robert Howden, a British architect, described to the Royal Society of Arts a new visible glass for store windows, pigglass protection is needed but should be invisible. The trick is to round the glass slightly so there is no reflection.

As Army and Navy Met in Classic Battle

Seventy-nine thousand spectators packed Franklin Field stadium, at Philadelphia, the Annapolis band played "Anchor's Aweigh" and midshipmen of the U. S. Naval Academy swung into the spectacular parade that precedes each annual football game with West Point. Here's the colorful scene, and the crowd that included scores of notable figures, shortly before a powerful Army eleven began a victory march that ended with a 20-0 score.

The first touchdown of the traditional West Point-Annapolis game! Following a series of successful charges from its own 47-yard line in the second quarter of the battle at Philadelphia, the closely coordinated Army eleven had smashed through to a tally when this action picture was taken.

Two members of an illustrious racing family met for the first time the other day at the John Hertz farm near Cary, Ill. One was Reigh Count, champion of five years ago. The other was Our Count, son of Reigh Count. The mother, Anita Peabody could not be present.

But part of this chapter of a great story is hers, though she was unable to leave her matronly duties in Kentucky to make the Belmont Handicap and other high class turf contests.

In 1929 Reigh Count conquered some of the best horses in Great Britain in the Coronation Cup. He was beaten by a narrow margin in the Ascot Gold Cup. When they brought him home, there was a happy reunion with his friend of high school days.

PART AND MEET AGAIN—

Shortly after that race, Anita was retired. But Reigh Count went on to become the American champion in the following year, winning the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Handicap and other high class turf contests.

Texas Girl Athlete Wants To Get In Basketball

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, one of the world's greatest feminine athletes, is so eager to play amateur basketball this winter she has demanded an immediate investigation of her disqualification by the Amateur Athletic Union.

And at the same time she expressed her desire to lead, as the elected captain, a team called the Golden Cyclones and sponsored by the insurance company for which she works, the 19-year-old Olympic games star reiterated her denial that she authorized use of her name or picture in a motorcar advertisement.

Insurance company officials have announced they will aid Miss Didrikson's fight for reinstatement, but it appeared likely she would not play on the basketball team until the matter was cleared up.

Lawrence D. Benedetto, chairman of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union, at New Orleans, said he had started an investigation. At Chicago, J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., said Miss Didrikson's case rested now with the district committee.

Indiana also got off with a victory, but just managed to make the grade against Wabash, 22 to 21. Purdue's hopes of successfully defending the championship, were damaged yesterday when Ray Eddy, a veteran forward suffered severed muscles and tendons in his right forearm in a fall.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Western Conference basketball teams which met Ohio State this season, may now start worrying.

The Buckeyes last night demonstrated that they have endurance and shooting ability by smothering Toledo University, 64 to 10, in their opening game. Thirteen men participated in the romp which produced 30 field goals, including five each by Lew Hinchman and Brown.

TROJANS RAISE EYEBROWS AND LOOK SKEPTICAL

Epidemic Stories From Ramblers' Train Unimpressive

Los Angeles, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The influenza pestilence which has been riding the westbound train with the Notre Dame football squad, spread within Troy's guarded walls today leaving results which baffled science.

There was much whooping at the University of Southern California, but no coughing. A questioning lift of the eyebrows was an accompanying symptom.

Not that the Trojans lacked sympathy for the ailing Ramblers whom they play here Saturday, but there was a certain absence of conviction concerning the infected trainload of athletes who would like to terminate the S. C. string of consecutive victories at 18.

Two years is a long time, but not too far distant for the Trojans to remember how the late Kunte Rockne brought a team of cripples west, minus a fullback and all that sort of thing. All Southern California was sympathetic because of what Coach Howard Jones' eleven was going to do to those stricken invaders.

The marks of that Notre Dame 27 to 0 victory are the main reason for so many doubters.

Southern California has heard too, how Coach Hunk Anderson took his traveling infirmity to New York. How three victims of the terrible scourge, namely Jim Harris, George Melinkovich, and Emmet Murphy scored rather persistently on Army's Cadets.

Among the unbelievers was the Troy head man.

"Naturally," spoke Coach Jones, "I feel sorry for the boys who are sick and for Hunk. But you know what I think? Anderson could have all his first string in bed with the flu and still we'd have our hands full."

Long Beach, Cal. Officers
Have A Mystery In Death On Yacht

BULLETIN

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Detectives announced today they believed they were near a solution to the slaying of Captain Walter Wanderwell, globe trotter, suspected German spy and soldier of fortune, as they broadcast a nationwide appeal for the apprehension of "Curley" Guy, identified as the "man in gray."

Guy emerged from a medley of suspects and motives as the central figure in the investigation when Mrs. Wanderwell told officers he recently fought with Wanderwell and threatened the life of the globe trotter. Guy, she said, was a former companion of her husband on a South American trip.

Harry Greenwood, gambling ship employee, identified a photograph of Guy as that of "the man in gray" whom he saw on a pier early yesterday shortly after Wanderwell was slain in the unlighted Captain's cabin of his yacht Calma. The vessel was docked alongside the pier on the eve of its departure on a world cruise with a motley crew of adventurers. A man garbed in gray had inquired for the Captain of the yacht shortly before Wanderwell was shot in the back.

Guy, Mrs. Wanderwell said, has quarreled with her husband over finances.

Mrs. Wanderwell's story of her slain husband's differences with Guy was corroborated in Seattle by Eugene A. Babbitt, who said the man had attempted to kill Wanderwell during the fight. Seattle police sought two men acquaintances of Guy in an effort to locate him.

Long Beach, Calif., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A missing key, a stolen pistol and an hysterical widow who could supply neither motive nor suggestion of a killer added to the mystery as police sought a solution today in the slaying of Captain Walter Wanderwell, world adventurer, aboard his yacht, Calma.

Shot down in a dark stateroom a few minutes after a stranger had inquired the whereabouts of the Captain from four companions who were to have accompanied him on a world cruise, Wanderwell was found with one hand clutching a bunch of keys. One of these, police said, was missing.

Police learned that on last Friday the Captain reported the theft of an automatic pistol from the yacht.

About the body, discovered by members of the crew as they stumbled over it in the darkness after being alarmed by the sound of a shot, no weapon was found. Detectives obtained from the crew, who saw the stranger as he made his inquiry through a porthole, only a meager description of a middle-aged man dressed in a gray suit.

Turning to the widow, Aloha Wanderwell, who was in Hollywood at the time of the slaying, police learned, they said, that she had separated from her husband only a short time ago and was working as a cutter in a film studio. Disheartened by word of the tragedy, she could give police little aid.

Likewise, 16 others who were to have accompanied Wanderwell on the world cruise, which was to have begun this week, told police they were at a loss to understand the attack. They were held in jail as material witnesses.

Boots and Pillows

Dancing pillows, something new in Christmas gifts, are the ingenious invention of dainty Harriet Hector, America's premier danseuse. Harriet, who believes in making as many gifts as possible, is spending her leisure hours in the interesting home-work of revamping the 700 pairs of high kid boots she has worn this past year into presents. She cuts off the tops of these kid boots and makes gorgeous sofa pillows out of them by having the kid dyed rich lemon yellows, delicate lime green, grape and raspberry shades.

The bottoms, the slipper parts which are in good condition, Miss Hector sends to the Dancers' Club, for those aspiring ballerinas who cannot afford new slippers each week. Thus, she not only makes pretty gifts for her personal friends, but generously offers other girls a real chance to be in Harriet Hector's shoes!

Shipful Master is the first time in ten years that officer has been held over. Other officers selected were Leslie G. Archer, senior warden, Walter H. Archer, junior warden, Edward L. # BIG NEBRASKA FAMILY GOING TO WASHINGTON

Thirteen Sumnicks To Return President-Elect's Visit

By HUGH FOGARTY
Waterloo, Neb. —(AP)— Road maps will provide ample reading matter for the 13 Sumnicks when snow drifts choke the rolling gravel lanes traversed by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and his party during a gay campaign interlude — a visit to the Sumnick farm.

For the current family slogan is "On to Washington," and the group will be as busy as bees on snowed-in winter days making plans to return the Roosevelt social call.

Full work on the 1,200 acres owned by 66-year-old Gus Sumnick has been too heavy to permit planning actual details of the trip. But Gus has announced one thing as certain—

Some time next summer, when planting is finished, he and mother and their 11 strapping sons and daughters—Helen, Marie, Kathryn, Rose, Hazel, Gus, Jr., William, John, Leo, Francis and Jack—will march into the White House to salute the President and his wife with a genuine Nebraska "Howdy."

"Visit Us" Says Roosevelt
The White House trip was the future president's idea, and Gus accepted avidly. After he and Mrs. Roosevelt had finished a chicken dinner cooked on the Sumnick's big kitchen range the democratic presidential nominee invited the family to "visit Washington some time as my guest."

Of course the auto trip can not be made until Rosie's school lets out. She teaches a half mile down the road from the farm home south of here.

Then, too, the girls must have time to get their wardrobes in shape, the boys will have to be fitted out with new suits and "old Gus" himself will have to lay in a supply of cigars to cut up and smoke his old corn-cob pipe.

Pipe May Prove Troublesome
That pipe may prove a bone of contention in the family circle. Gus may want to smoke it in the White House as he did when he greeted the Roosevelts on the farm. The girls, Gus' severest critics, may veto the idea.

Before Sumnick left the farm on a trip to his native Germany three years ago the girls cautioned him about leaving his spoon in his coffee cup and other breaches of etiquette. When he returned, he exhibited proudly a photograph of himself taken over there. On a table was his coffee cup and in the cup—sticking up plainly—was the spoon. Sumnick confesses that it brought a lecture from the girls. But he doesn't mind them. Pedagogic "lectures" are all a part of keeping a big family happy, he says. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sumnick think that rearing a large family is an easy matter.

"Everyone ought to have a big family; it's much easier that way," says the little Scotch-Irish mother. "The just take care of themselves."

"Sure," agrees Gus. "If you have one or two you've got to keep watching them all the time. With a lot of 'em you don't have to do that. If one of our does anything wrong, you ought to hear the others fight him. We don't have to worry."

And the Sumnicks don't need to worry. They have so much fun at home that none has married, all except the two youngest have been graduated from Waterloo high school, some have gone through college, and all are willing helpers about the farm.

Sumnick was born in Germany but came to the United States when he was 19. He has been a democrat since the day he landed in Nebraska to work for an uncle as a hired man.

Thrifty ways and hard work paid him well, for since his marriage in 1925 he has seen his original 160 acres grow to 1,200 with the total almost free of debt.

The visit of the Roosevelt party last September was about as high an honor as Gus could imagine. Hazel, whose doughnuts are about the best in Douglas county, an eleven prize cake-baker, pitched in with the rest of the women folks and a number of neighbor women several days before the visit to prepare 40 chickens and the mountain of food fed the party.

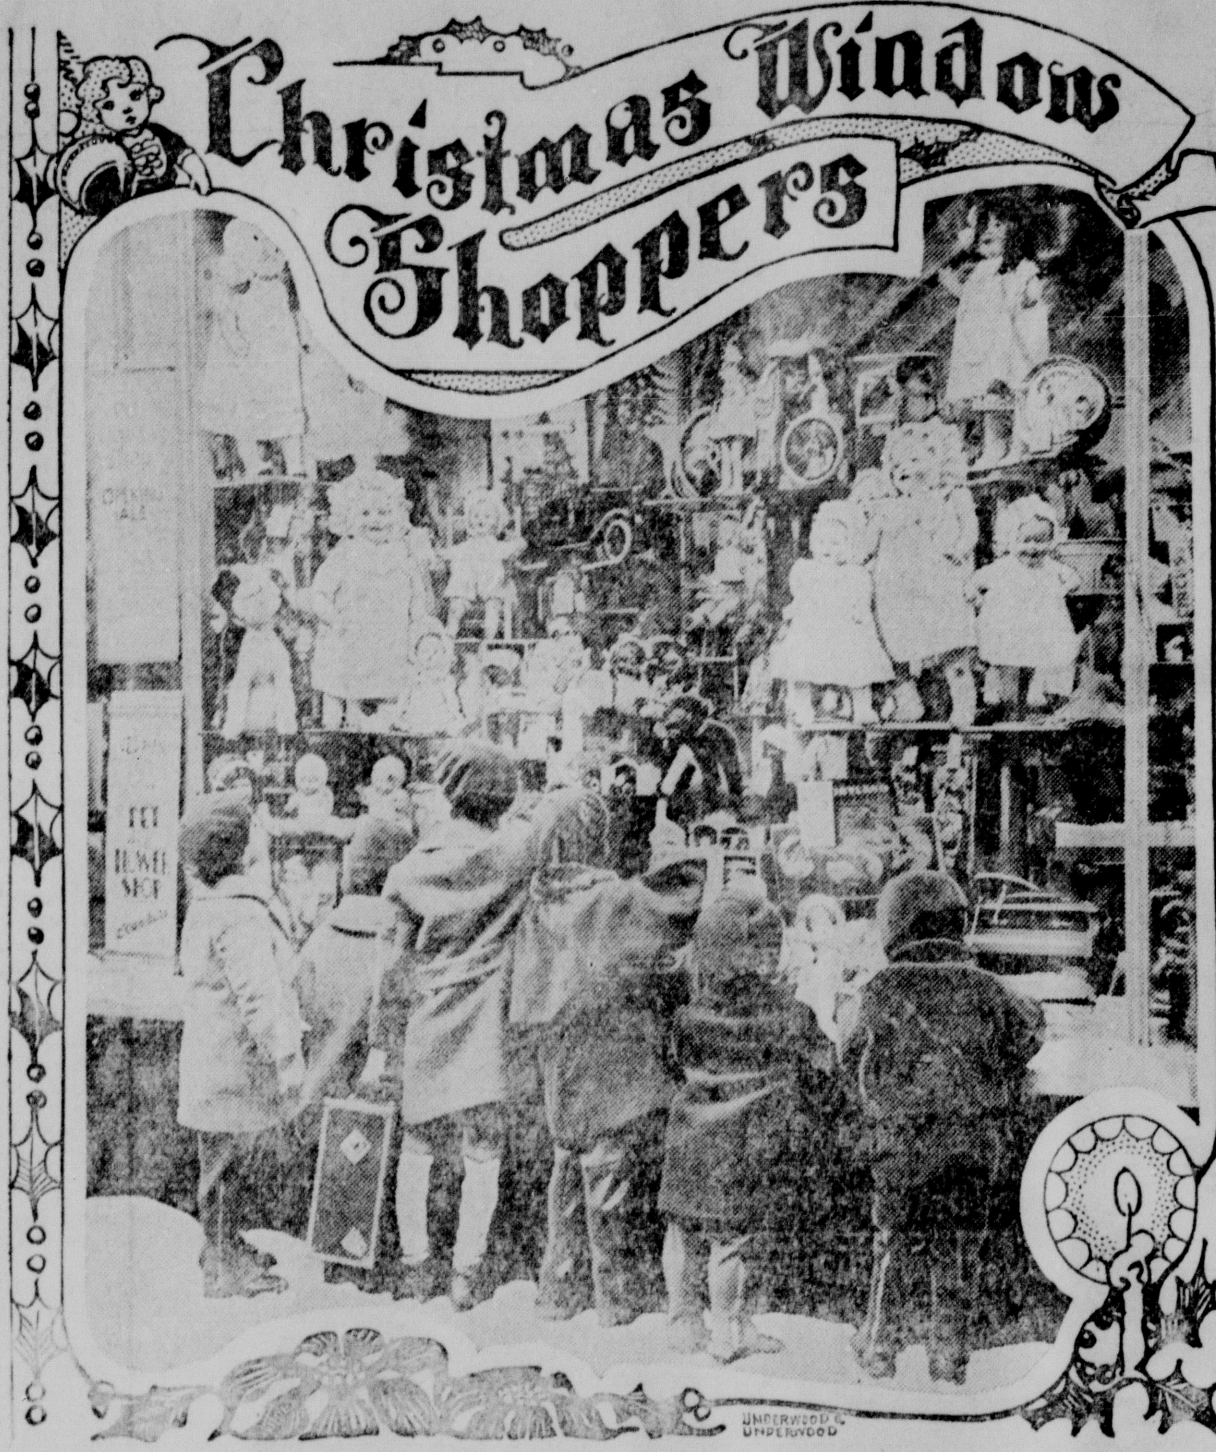

"Wasn't it grand?" was Gus comment after the affair was all over.

The trip to the White House won't be all just in fun for this successful Nebraska farmer. His years on the land have endowed him with a knowledge of farm problems and he has definite ideas for their solution that he would like to impart to his friend, the President.

Gus feels certain that he will find an attentive listener, for while greeting the Roosevelts at the farm he found them both able "to use plain farm talk with us."

Dangerous Rocks Charted
Pinnacle rocks lurking at various depths in the ocean off southeastern Alaska have been responsible for so many shipwrecks in the past that the main ship channels in that locality have been swept with a wire drag to locate the pinnacles and those discovered have been charted. One remarkable pinnacle found rose from a general depth of 600 feet to within 17 feet of the surface, according to a report from the federal bureau of geodetic survey. This pinnacle, so the report states, has been called "Washington Monument Rock," because it is higher than the famous monument erected in honor of our first President.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The opposition to the American free public school system which has been seen in the blocking of a Department of Education was again evidenced by recent events in New York state. A law was enacted there which strikes a terrific blow to our basic principles of education and free speech. On March 17, last, Gov. Roosevelt signed in haste, and after refusing a public hearing, the Hayes-Love bill, one of the most amazingly bigoted laws ever passed by an American legislature. It provides a fine of from $100 to $500, or from 30 to 90 days imprisonment, or both, for any official who asks or anybody who tells an official that an applicant for a teaching position in the public schools is a Baptist, Methodist, Mormon, Roman Catholic or a Christian Scientist.

This bill makes it a misdemeanor for anyone connected with any of the public schools of New York, or engaged in securing employment for teachers, or connected with any organization or association which has any interest whatsoever in the schools "directly or indirectly to ask indicate or transmit orally or in writing the religion or religious affiliation of any person seeking employment or official position on the public schools of the state of New York."

Doubtless efforts will be made to have a similar law passed in other states.

CLAUDETTE HAS DONE COMPLETE ABOUT FACE NOW

Former Heart Of Gold Has Gone: She Now Is Without One

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer
Hollywood, Dec. 7—Claudette Colbert has done an "about face." No longer is she the girl with a heart of gold. Rather, she is heartless. And Cecil B. DeMille is the cause of it all.

DeMille has been given the credit and blame for a lot of things during the 20 years he has been in the film racket. But this is the first time in my recollection that the responsibility for a girl "going bad" has rested upon his shoulders.

Of course, you aren't supposed to take all of this too seriously. Claudette still is one of the most respectable girls in Hollywood—although that shouldn't be held against her. Her "going bad" simply was in front of the cameras. However, even that is something in view of the roles she has been playing for the last three or four years. In all that time she hasn't been anything but a good girl, sometimes a bit colorful but never bad.

Now, however, she has become as wicked as the old witch of fairy tale fame. But instead of her victims being little children they are full-grown men. All of this wickedness has been assumed for the role of Poppaea, the exotic courtesan wife of Nero, in "The Sign of the Cross." According to history, Poppaea unquestionably was one of the most evil women of all time. But her wickedness was cloaked with a feminine beauty and allurements which made her irresistible to all men.

That's the role into which Miss Colbert was tossed by DeMille. And she proved that despite her past refined roles she does know how to be bad. Take note Norman Foster. She loves it too.

"I've had opportunities to appear a little bit bad in parts of some pictures but they always 'white-washed' me at the end," Claudette told me. "But it has been different in 'The Sign of the Cross.'"

In looking back over Claudette's previous films, we find her always turning up good. In "The Lady Lies" she started out as Walter Huston's mistress but married him in the end. In "The Big Pond" she was just a sweet young girl "Young Man of Manhattan" brought her out as a modern young wife. She was a good girl placed in a bad light by the man she loved in "Honor Among Lovers." The girl in "Smiling Lieutenant" was indiscreet but one scarcely could term her bad.

In "Secrets of a Secretary" she posed as wicked in order to save another girl. Again in "The Wiser Sex" she was a good girl merely posing as bad. She was a naive girl who tried to act bad to get a state role in "The Misleading Lady."

DAILY HEALTH

ADDISON'S DISEASE

Addison's disease is a relatively rare condition. Cases, however, are reported from time to time, largely because of the recently developed treatment for this heretofore fatal condition.

When Dr. Thomas Addison first described the disease bearing his name, he established that it is due to a failure of the adrenal glands to function properly.

The patient suffering from Addison's disease becomes progressively weaker in muscle strength, the circulatory system sharing in this weakness.

He also suffers gastro-intestinal disturbances, anemia, and a characteristic change in the pigmentation of his skin. In many instances, Addison's disease is due to tuberculosis of the adrenals.

Just why the destruction of the adrenal glands should prove fatal was not understood clearly until recent years.

The problem centered about the nature of their secretions. It had been established that adrenalin is one of the substances secreted by the adrenals.

The injection of adrenalin, however, did not prolong the lives of sufferers. It was assumed, therefore, that the adrenals must secrete other substances.

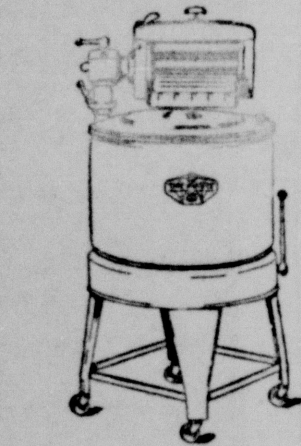

The adrenal gland is composed of two distinct parts the so-called medullary portion and the cortical. Since adrenalin comes from the medullary part, the other and evidently more essential substance or substances were therefore assumed to come from the cortical portion of the gland.

This assumption has been shown to be correct, and recently there was produced an extract from the cortical portion known as cortin. This extract, when administered to sufferers from Addison's disease has proved markedly effective in overcoming their weakness.

Cortin, however, is not a cure for Addison's disease. It promises to give, like insulin, a physiologic crutch, that is, an artificial means for supporting life.

Nick's Christmas Bag

By Jane Osborn

HERE are a lot of men out in the lumber camps that aren't going to get home for Christmas," Margaret Tompkins told a group of young men and women at the country club early in November. "I want to get a Christmas bag for every one of them. Who'll promise a Christmas bag?"

"I'd like to help," said Nick Loring. "Only thing is I'm green at that sort of thing. Do you suppose you could get someone to make a bag and fill it if I paid for it?"

"Yes; I've thought of that," said Margaret. "I've figured out that a nice bag can be got up for three dollars."

A little later when Nick Loring found Margaret alone he told her he wanted to be responsible for ten of the bags. "I'll send you the check in the morning."

Margaret pressed Nick's hand and looked up gratefully into his eyes. "You're the most generous man in the world," she said.

The afternoon before Christmas Margaret telephoned to Nick at his office.

"I want to tell you, Nick," said Margaret, "that I filled all the bags and they were so wonderful. Each one cost just three dollars. Now I find that there is just one left over after all the men at the camp have been supplied. As it is all filled, I can't return the money, but I thought maybe you knew of some poor fellow who might like one."

Nick thought a moment as he held the telephone receiver. "I do know a fellow," said he. "Used to work for us. Then he quit and went to farming over in the next county. Sort of a luckless fellow. Suppose I take that bag over to him."

So after the office closed at five, Nick called at Margaret's for the bag. He planned to drive the fifteen miles to the shack where Barry Smith lived and back before his seven o'clock dinner.

The cabin seemed deserted. Nick forced a window and walked in. But Barry was not to be found. Nick felt in his pocket for a match.

"Yes; I've Thought of That," Said Margaret.

but matches he had none. Then he groped around Barry's room, but was no more successful. So with nearly frozen fingers he undid the wrappings from the Christmas bag, opened it and found as he had hoped, a box of matches with the cigarettes and tobacco in the bag. By the time he had lighted a lamp, found fuel and warmed himself, the storm had covered the roads so that to attempt to return that night would be an act of folly. So Nick spent Christmas in poor Barry's forlorn cabin.

Fortunately for Nick, he carried, in his car, a box of groceries, bacon, bread and butter as a present to Barry to help through the winter. Much of this he left for Barry on his return; from the rest he made his own rather meager Christmas dinner. But if it hadn't been for Margaret's bag, Christmas would have been a dreadful day, indeed.

When Nick went to see Margaret on his way home on December 26, he found her in a state of real agitation.

"Somehow, I felt responsible for the whole thing," said Margaret.

"You were responsible for the fact that I had a rather pleasant Christmas after all. You kept me from freezing and starving to death, you cheered me with a good book, smokes and a mouth organ, and kept me from degradation by means of soap and a comb. The bag was a godsend."

"Oh, Nick," said Margaret, with eyes very tender. "I feel as if I knew you so much better because of this."

"Margaret," said Nick, "I've been trying to get up nerve for three months to tell you I love you—to distraction."

"And ever since you sent me the check for the bags I've known I wanted to hear you tell me," answered Margaret.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — Those politically-minded ones in the capital, who are still surveying the Republican debacle of Nov. 2 that saw the crash of so many oldtimers, are asking themselves if Jim Watson of Indiana really means that he is through campaigning.

He said so after it became known that he had lost his seat in the Senate by more than 20,000 votes to Fred Van Nuys.

Many who know "Sunny Jim," as they call him on capitol hill, find it hard to believe that he's through with active politics. He has known defeat before, but he has always staged a comeback.

Ever since he first came to congress in 1894 as a member of the house from the old sixth Indiana district he has been, in the eyes of many persons, a perfect picture of Old Guard Republicanism. He looks the part and acts the part.

His pursuit of the political game has had too much fascination and zest for him to give it up now. True, he has just passed his 68th birthday, but those who know him intimately believe that he has a long time before him yet.

MIGHT CHANGE HIS MIND

Even if Watson does say he is through with campaigning, he might change his mind in 1934 Indiana's other senator—Arthur R. Robinson—comes up for re-election then. He might find it hard to resist the temptation of making a bid for Robinson's seat.

There's another reason why Watson might be reluctant to retire from politics. If he quits it probably will mean the passing of an era in Indiana politics—an era that extends over a period of some 20 years and of which he was such a definite part. He is the last of the old guard Republicans in Indiana politics, the last of that one-time powerful group that seemed to make Indiana's republicanism a certainty on election day.

The Republican organization there must build anew.

COLORFUL CAREER

Watson's public career has been picturesque.

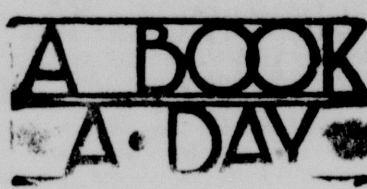

At least twice he has set his steps toward the White House only to be turned back. There are people in and out of Indiana today who believe that "Sunny Jim" would have been selected as the G. O. P. nominee back in 1920 instead of Harding had he been given the endorsement of his own state.

Divorced From Two, Weds Third Brother

Mrs. Harryette Post DeTarr, above, believes in keeping her husbands all in one family. Her marriage to the third DeTarr brother, following divorces from two, has been revealed. The heiress to a large Denver estate is honeymooning in Los Angeles with Beverly K. DeTarr, who twice had been her brother-in-law. Previously she had been married, and divorced from James M. DeTarr, of San Francisco and Noble A. DeTarr of Wilmington, Del. Her third husband is the youngest of seven DeTarr brothers.

Less than half of the homes in the United States measure up to minimum standards of health and decency.

Under present conditions no improvement is possible—because the building industry simply cannot build decent homes for ordinary folk at prices that ordinary folk can afford to pay.

These startling assertions come from "Housing America," a little package of dynamite prepared by the editors of Fortune magazine.

The building industry, declare the authors of this book, is the second industry in size in the world's greatest industrial nation. But this industry is not yet industrialized; that is, it produces its product under old handcraft conditions and it has not even begun to take advantage of the opportunities offered by mass production.

This, they say, is not the industry's fault. Building a house is not the same as building an automobile. But they do assert that the building industry can enjoy the greatest industrial boom imaginable if it submits to a complete revamping, learns how to produce homes in factories and gets the aid

Christmas Essentially the Day of the Child

DECEMBER the 25th is the Day of the Child.

It is upon this day of days that countless men and women and little ones barely able to speak their language utter the great rejoicing: For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

Even those who hold creeds in which there is no Christmas feel the splendor of that cry, and those who have no formal creed at all still know there is one of the 365 portions of the year which is essentially the Day of the Child.

It is the day when even the most unsentimental adult, long since congealed and hardened by the years, can hear in his heart the footsteps of the little ones. Today they are running about so eagerly all over the world pattering to see what good gifts may have been received, ardent with a hope that only young hearts can feel.

On this day the austere scientist who has almost quit believing in the very laws of astronomy which recently seemed so sure and stable, but which now seem dissolving in a mist of relativity—this careful professional skeptic becomes as a child himself, and considers it hard indeed if he cannot believe in Santa Claus, bearded fairy godfather of the children.

On this day even those who have been the most careless feel like saying over reverently that beautiful prayer for wisdom in the rearing of children:

"Almighty God, heavenly Father, who hast blessed us with the joy and care of children; Give us light and strength so to train them, that they may love whatsoever things are true and pure and lovely and of good report."

For on this Day of the Child we all remember that the most precious gift we can bestow upon our children is a capacity for feeling just such tender and generous and helpful emotions as today stir in the breasts of all good men and women.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

trialized; that is, it produces its product under old handcraft conditions and it has not even begun to take advantage of the opportunities offered by mass production.

This, they say, is not the industry's fault. Building a house is not the same as building an automobile. But they do assert that the building industry can enjoy the greatest industrial boom imaginable if it submits to a complete revamping, learns how to produce homes in factories and gets the aid

Traveling Around America

TROPICAL BAGGAGE

THESE Indians with their wide sombreros and gay sarapes are waiting for the train to Guatemala City. They are all ready to leave the baggage aboard and to tempt passengers with souvenirs and tropical tidbits. Spectacular scenery and fascinating native life combined with modern conveniences make the Central America so popular with travelers that one American steamship company is adding four new $3,000,000 ships to its regular fleet which makes fortnightly cruises between New York and California by way of the Panama Canal and the Central America.

The car-window views of Central America are fascinating and ever-changing: a shaggy thatched hut peeping at the gringos through the banana trees... clumsy oxen ploughing a field with the curved root of a manioc tree... a ravine thousands of feet deep and rivers roaring down mountainides... pretty Indian girls reaching a tray of tamales and tortillas through the window, some delicious dances, or a pineapple dripping with luscious juice... orchids perched on forest trees and macaws and parrots chattering from the branches... volcanoes puffing lazily above dark green coffee fincas... numming birds and butterflies and cool-looking haciendas.

and there is always a rise in pedestrian accidents. Moreover, last-minute shoppers are too hurried to practice safe pedestrianism. A shopper with his arms full of bundles hurrying across a slippery street, is a made-to-order traffic accident victim.

"Take time to be safe" is a particularly fitting slogan at this time of the year. It is not only much more convenient but also much safer to get your shopping done early.

The advertisements are printed for your convenience. They inform and save your time, energy and money.

—The thrifty housewife will not pass up the grocery ads in today's paper.

EXCUSABLE FOLLY

IT IS true that men and women at Christmas time do things which are foolish, especially in the giving of presents. But when did cold wisdom ever make people happy? Who wants to see a Christmas when nobody spends more than he should, or when there is no giving of things that are trivial or needless or foolish? A truly sane Christmas would be a miserable one.—American Magazine.

Ancients Gave Presents as Most People Do Now

THE custom of making presents at Christmas is derived from very ancient usage. It was a Teutonic invention. In Latin countries gifts were exchanged at New Year's, writes James Waldo Fawcett in the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star.

The decoration of churches with mistletoe and holly is likewise a pagan survival.

Nativity plays and pageants trace back to a pre-Christian era. The sports of the Lords of Misrule in England are supposed to be an inheritance from the Saturnalia of heathen Rome.

Father Christmas or Santa Claus is identified with St. Nicholas or Nicolas, and also with Knecht Rupprecht and Robin Goodfellow. Grimm says that in some parts of Germany Knecht Nicholas is merely an attendant on the real gift-giver, who is sometimes the infant Christ and sometimes Dame Bertha, but who is also frequently conceived as an ugly dwarf, called Krampus.

Carol singing by waifs, strolling street musicians, is an old British custom.

The first Christmas cards date from about 1843.

The setting up in Latin churches of a Christmas creche is said to have been originated by St. Francis.

She Goes Over With a Bang!

It may seem curious, but this bang-up coiffure, worn so fetchingly by these days. It is the latest innovation in French hairdressing and claims Mlle. Andre Spinnely, is winning "Oo la la's" of warm acclaim in Paris curiosity as its first virtue.

Eighty-two one should be through wanting to run around. It's not so much the money," she fibbed proudly, "but I like to get out and see life and people. One is always running into such lovely experiences like you—and tea. One can just see that you two are made for each other."

"Alas," confessed Dan, frankly, smiling, "I have not the honor to be the lady's husband."

"Let us look at aprons," I suggested, and the naughty romancer spread them out.

Dan fingered the change in his pocket. "I'll take two of those white ones for my wife," he announced.

The words were simple, but they fell upon my ears like a death sentence. "You never told me," I gasped reproachfully, as our guest turned to fold her supplies.

"Well, I must go now," she said. "I'm staying too long. I've got to empty this bag before nightfall."

"Isn't she a wonder!" we exclaimed simultaneously, at which we looked little fingers and pressed thumbs, laughingly, while we wished.

I drew my hand away, as soon as was decent. No more familiarity now. "Think," said I, "from Havi-

"On, Haviland," she exclaimed appreciatively, handling her cup daintily. Now I was sure that she had seen better days.

"You have courage to be out today, little mother," said Dan.

"That's what my daughter thinks," twinkled the old dear. "She says at ple," he had mused, before Annette entered, "diffuse a charm as real and as hard to define as the perfume of a rose." This was poetical conversation for the practical Dan; there was something on his mind. I hurried Annette into the kitchen for more cake, before his mood should vanish, but—

"The door-bell rang. It was too cold to keep anyone waiting; I answered it myself. A prim and tiny old lady stood there.

"I'm making a little extra for Christmas," she announced, cheerily. "Would you like to look at aprons?"

"Just what I'm in need of," I said "come in."

"Taking her bag, I led her to the sitting room, and Dan placed a chair for her before the fire.

"Good-day and thank you," she greeted Dan. "How pleasant here by the fire!"

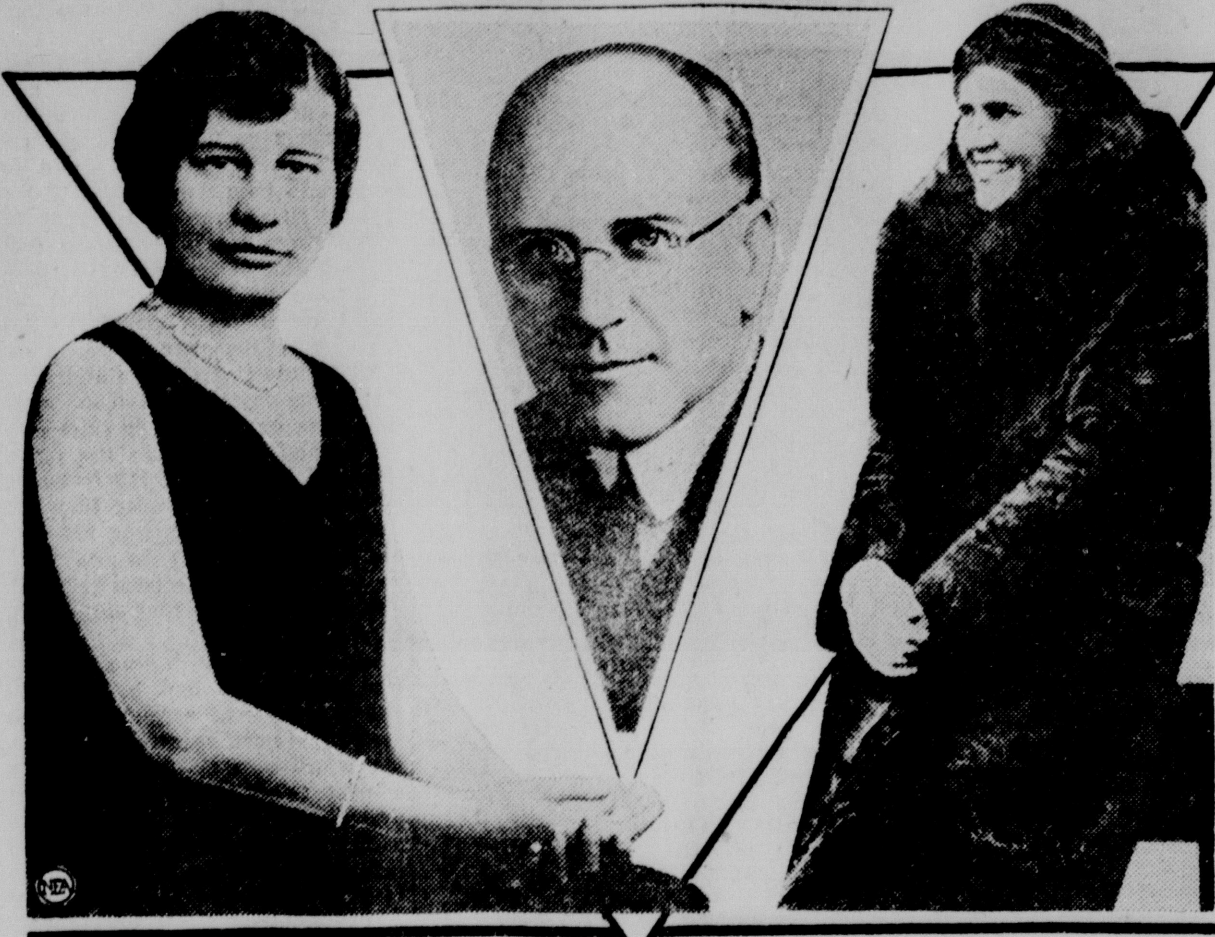

Annette came in with the cake. "Another teacup," I whispered. Her face registered, "You certainly are eccentric," but I ignored this. In warranted self-respect my little visitor had come to the front door and I saw no reason why she should not have tea. With bird-like movements, glancing now at me, now at Dan, she untied the satin strings of her neat but prehistoric bonnet.

"On, Haviland," she exclaimed appreciatively, handling her cup daintily. Now I was sure that she had seen better days.

"You have courage to be out today, little mother," said Dan.

Mrs. Gail Stephens Kinard

By NEA Service

Kansas City, Mo.—Dr. Kerwin W. Kinard, prominent physician, is expected to introduce to Kansas City society soon his second wife, Mrs. Gail Stephens Kinard, wealthy Detroit heiress, the "other woman" in a strange romantic triangle that had its beginning 25 years ago.

The romance began in Berlin, when Dr. Kinard, then a student, met Miss Gail Stephens, daughter of a Detroit banker. Dr. Kinard returned to America, letters went astray, he believed his sweetheart of student days dead.

Dr. Kinard married Ada Lee Porter, descendant of a pioneer Kansas City family, 15 years ago. They were happy with their two children, a son and a daughter.

Then, a few weeks ago, Dr. Kinard learned that his former sweetheart still was alive, residing in Detroit after having twice been divorced. He met her, then asked Mrs. Kinard to divorce him.

Mrs. Kinard's divorce testimony was to the effect that since he had met his student-days sweetheart again, the doctor "could not live without her." She was given the divorce.

Dr. Kinard and Gail Stephens were married quietly. The 25-year romance has resulted in a happy reunion, and a broken home.

SPRING, AUTUMN AND ETERNITY.

There are two things I dearly love. In nature's circling year, Which lift my spirit far above The weight of earthly care: They bring before my eager view The brightness of a home, Where all their loveliness is true. Nor change can ever come.

The early times of Spring's first hours. Brings freshness to the heart; They rouse the wearied spirit's powers. And sweeter life impart.

Her dancing breezes gently woo The blossoms of the rose. All wet with sparkling morning dew. Their petals to enclose.

The weary sufferer of pain. The bowed with care or grief. Hail her returning once again. With hopes of sweet relief: Spring hours cannot fail to bring. Calm and consoling thought. Her many voices ever sing Of joy to mortals brought.

But how, O Autumn? Shall I dare To paint thy gorgeous hues: The softness of thy morning air. Thine evening's pearly dews. The solemn grandeur of thy night Whose starry crown is set. With gems more radiantly bright.

Than earthly cornet? The glory of thy sunset hour. When all is calm and still. Bring full conviction of the power That Heaven and earth doth fill. Oh? Who can gaze upon thy skies As twilight shades them o'er. And not from earthly dreamings rise. Their Maker to adore?

The wreath of fading Summer flowers Is yet upon thy brow. But all the mirth of Summer hour Is changed to sadness now.

Jerry's Christmas Eve Guests

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

"OLLY," said Jerry Blaine to his sister, "will you do me a little favor?"

"Possibly," drawled Molly. "What is it?"

"Well," began Jerry, "I want to give a little party on Christmas eve."

"Christmas eve! That's not a good night for a party, Jerry. People have a habit of being frightfully busy about their own affairs."

"Christmas eve it must be," insisted Jerry stubbornly.

"All right, Christmas eve it shall be, old obstinate. And I suppose the favor you're asking is my help on that most inconvenient of nights."

"Rather your presence, Molly. As a matter of fact, the guests to be are all named."

"Why not have it here at the house?"

"Molly," said Jerry solemnly, "I already have that party planned down to the very last button and the only place I can picture it is in the old home."

"How many are you asking, Jerry?"

"Seven," came the prompt reply. "Besides you, Peter and myself. A comfortable dinner party."

Jerry drove from his sister's straight back to the big square house that had been left jointly to Molly and himself.

Today he strode through the long living room to a small study where he picked up a tiny snapshot from his desk and addressed it tenderly.

"Phyllis sweetheart," he murmured, "here's hoping my wild schemes won't go wrong!"

Molly hustled through her preparations for her own Christmas guests, who had been put to bed unduly early, and flew into her party clothes. Peter was inclined to grumble over the whole affair, but Molly bore with him good-naturedly and carried him off in time.

Jerry flung wide the door at their ring. Molly entering, stopped short.

"How perfectly lovely!" she cried. "I've been so busy with shopping Jerry, that I've hardly seen you to ask what luck you have had with your guests."

Jerry drew down the corners of his mouth. "You were right," he said, "as always. Sit absolutely could not see their way to come."

"That leaves—" began Molly. "You and Peter, yours truly, and—Phyllis Rowe. You know she has no family at all."

Whatever comments his sister was about to make were not uttered, for at that moment the door bell rang, and there stood Phyllis, a lovely vision in furs.

Molly, looking from Jerry to his pretty guest, was struck with a sudden thought. The two of them made a handsome pair.

After a truly typical Christmas feast, Jerry managed an aside with his sister as Peter was discussing a recent play with Phyllis.

"I Love You, Phyllis, and I Want You for My Wife."

"Molly," he said persuasively, "coax Peter into the study and see if you can't stay there for a little."

Then he turned to Phyllis. "Come," he invited, "let's sit by the fire and tell secrets. I'll tell mine first!" he promised.

"I love you, Phyllis," he said at last, "and I want you for my wife. I have imagined you again and again sitting here just this way beside me. Have I any chance, dear?"

Phyllis did not speak for a moment, and Jerry's heart sank like a plummet. Then, softly, there stole from the study the sweet strains of "Silent night, holy night."

Phyllis lifted her pensive eyes to Jerry's and laid her slender hand on the arm of his chair where it rested.

"Jerry," she said, "I love you, and I want you for my wife. I have imagined you again and again sitting here just this way beside me. Have I any chance, dear?"

Good Christmas

By EDWARD SANFORD MARTIN, in Missouri Farmer.

THOUGH doubters doubt and scoffers scoff, And peace on earth seems still far off; Though greedy man is greedy still And competition chokes good-will, While rich men sigh and poor men fret, Dear me! we can't spare Christmas yet! Time may do better—maybe not; Meanwhile let's keep the day we've got! On Bethlehem's birth and Bethlehem's star, Whatever our speculations are, Where'er for us may run the line Where human merges with divine, We're dull indeed if we can't see What Christmas feelings ought to be. And dull again if we can doubt It's worth our while to bring them out "Glory to God; good-will to men!" Come! Feel it, show it, give it then! Come to us, Christmas, good old day, Soften us, cheer us, say your say To hearts which throb, too eager, keep In bonds, while fellow-feeling sleeps. Good Christmas, whom our children love, We love you, too! Lift us above Our cares, our fears, our small desires! Open our hands and stir the fires Of helpful fellowship within us, And back to love and kindness win us!

was instantly grasped. "Every chance in the world," she whispered.

Later, Molly took Jerry to task. "I believe," she said accusingly, "you asked those people on Christmas eve just hoping they wouldn't come."

Her brother looked sheepish. Then, "Right you are," he admitted, "I got an acceptance from Phyllis last, however, and gambled on the others being too busy."

"You're a fraud!" said Molly. "Merry Christmas!" said Jerry. © by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNT Service

Pylon Memorial to First Flight

"Christmas Man," Name Given to Kris Kringle

SANTA CLAUS does not visit the children of Lithuania on Christmas eve as he does the children in this country, but there are all kinds of Christmas celebrations in which they have a part, and many good things to eat. In Germany and Norway old Kris Kringle hides gifts for the children in many out of the way places, and Christmas day is spent chiefly in hunting for them. In Holland Saint Nicholas dispensed Christmas cheer, but when the Hollanders came to this country his name was changed to Santa Claus. In Sweden Santa Claus is much like he is in America, but he does not come down the chimney but in the night he comes into the room where the Christmas tree is and leaves gifts for all. His name is not Santa Claus, however, for he is called "The Christmas Man."

Shepherds and Wise Men It is not clear from the Scriptural allusions that the shepherds who visited the new-born Jesus were the same as the wise men who saw his star in the East. Only Matthew records the story of the magi, and only Luke mentions the shepherds. Mark and John do not refer to either the shepherds or the wise men.

Recipe for Merry Christmas Are you seeking a formula which will insure you a Merry Christmas? It's really too easy: Just have a child or two around the place and human nature will do the rest.—Collier's Weekly.

NO LOAFING THERE Phoenix, Ariz.—Convicts in the Arizona Penitentiary will not grow fat with idleness. They have been set to tilling several hundred acres on which are grown vegetables for the penitentiary and to help the poor. A tannery has also been established to supply work. Tannic acid is secured from the canaigre plant, which grows wild in Arizona, and which is excellent for tanning high grade leathers.

First Christmas Trees

Originated in Germany

ON THE wild, sandy heathland of the North German plain the dark-leaved fir trees have flourished for many centuries. It is not strange, therefore, that the "Christmas Tree" should have its origin there. It dates back prior to the days of Christianity. The early Egyptians used to employ decorated trees in their festive season celebrations. It is a fact well known by all botanists that the palm tree puts forth a shoot each month, and at the time of the winter solstice, a spray of palm, bearing twelve shoots, was employed in the temple of Osiris to mark the completion of the year. Curiously enough, England did not adopt Christmas trees until the middle of the last century. The prince consort, shortly after his marriage to Queen Victoria, introduced them into Great Britain.

WOULD you mind if we didn't celebrate Christmas this year, Bob?" Bob looked up quickly from his bacon and eggs. "What's the idea, darling?"

Ellen's lip trembled. "I just can't bear to think of Christmas without father. And it isn't as if the baby were old enough to know the difference."

Her husband seemed about to say something, then evidently thought better of it. "Where is your mother going to be?" he asked, presently.

"In Boston, with Leila and the children. Of course, with youngsters that age, one has to keep Christmas."

"Whatever you say goes with me. Sweetness; you know that," said Bob.

Of course it was a hard time for Ellen, just now, remembering other Christmases.

Why, last year, how she had been flying around, joyously if hecticly busy with last minute shopping and packing to go home for the holidays. She and Bob and two-month-old little Jim, named for his grandfather. Would they ever forget that last happy celebration in the old home?

Ellen's father had loved Christmas, and what Bob had twice started to say had been something to the effect that he would not approve of anyone's not celebrating it.

During the days which followed, Ellen carefully avoided any errands which would take her downtown into the thick of the bundled-laden throngs. She bought little Jim half a dozen toys on her way to market.

Ellen went to bed early, leaving Bob reading. He had been patient himself.

It was on the morning after Christmas that a strange thing happened.

Ellen had left little Jim with Nora, who came in to help mornings and had gone down to the post office for the letter from mother, which would tell how Christmas passed for her.

She was back at her own steps, with the letter saved to read in the quiet and warmth within, when the pretty young woman from next door ran out with a sweater thrown across her shoulders.

"Do excuse me," she said breathlessly. "But we're next door neighbors and, if I may ask, isn't your name Cunningham?"

"Why, yes," said Ellen. "It is."

"I thought so," said the other, with a puzzled look. "You see, yesterday I was passing with a piece of plum pudding for a shut-in old lady below, when a middle-aged man stopped me and asked me if I could tell him where the Cunninghams live."

"And I told him," the other was saying, "that I thought you lived right here."

"Yes," urged Ellen, with the strangest feeling of suspense. "Yes." "He looked up at the house, and shook his head. 'Oh, no,' he said, very positively, yet gently, too. 'That couldn't possibly be it. There would be a wreath on the door.' And he went on."

After a moment, Ellen found herself in her own room with her mother's letter open in her hand. She read it through, very carefully. Then read it again.

"Today has been a happy day with me, after all. Your father has seemed with me, even more than usual. Everything I did brought him back to me. Helping fill the children's stockings reminded me of your first Christmas. You were such a tiny thing, but he insisted you were not too young to celebrate and we filled your little sock together. I even sang the old carols softly to myself as they came over the radio and it made him seem very near."

"Leila and Will are going out to mail this for me."

"Love to all. MOTHER."

"Everything I did, brought him back to me."

Ellen sat for a long, long time, thinking.

Soviet Honors Stalin's Wife With Funeral

Among the highest honors the Soviet grants is a burial—the customary practice being cremation—and this was given to Nadezhda Alliluleva, the wife of Joseph Stalin. She died suddenly with no official announcement ever made as to the cause, and Stalin ordered a funeral at which the red coffin rode on a richly carved red hearse, as pictured here, through Moscow streets. Chopin's funeral march was played instead of the usual Red funeral march, and Soviet troops escorted the coffin to the secret burial place in the convent of New Virgins.

Accident Rate Is Higher On Country Roads Than In Cities

"Still anybody's race" was the way in which the National Traffic Safety Contest was characterized as 442 American cities entered the final month of this unique accident prevention contest. The chief prize sought was the honor of being named "America's Safest City" for 1932.

While reports are being repeatedly scanned by a staff of experts in the offices of the Council, the final judging will not take place until early next year. At that time a group of nationally known traffic authorities will weigh all evidence, including complete reports from the cities themselves, in order to select those municipalities which have not only reduced their traffic accident rates but also have fostered certain definite safety activities throughout the year.

To Name Seven Winners
A winner will be selected in each of seven population groups as well as the grand prize winner. The "safest state" will also be named by the judges.

The only available indication of the possible winners is shown in the current death rates. Actual death rates in the cities will count about 25 per cent in the scoring while the amount of improvement over previous years will count another 25 per cent. Thus a city with the lowest death rate will not necessarily be the winner unless its accident prevention activities along certain definite lines are also considerably above par.

The first two cities in each group according to death rates for the first nine months of the year are as follows:

| Death Rates per 100,000 Population   | More than 500,000 population— |

Idaho has the lowest death rate among all the states, 6.0 deaths per 100,000 population with South Dakota's rate of 9.9 holding it in second place. The average for all states is 21.7.

The contest has served to arouse tremendous interest in traffic accident prevention work in scores of cities which had never before given it any serious thought, according to the National Safety Council. It is now certain that the nation's total of motor vehicle fatalities will decrease this year for the first time in history and it is felt that the contest has contributed to this reduction.

Plans for a second contest, to run through 1933, are already under way and registration will begin immediately at the close of the present race.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 7.—(AP)—All counties in Illinois, excepting Cook county have been advised of the amounts they will receive this year from the Illinois State school fund, of $10,500,000. The apportionment for Cook county cannot be computed until its 1931 tax assessments are spread.

CHRISTMAS DAY

IT IS not definitely known when Christmas was first celebrated. The institution of the festival is attributed to Telesphorus, who flourished in the reign of Antoninus Pius (131-161 A. D.). The reason for the final choice of December 25 cannot now be determined. As Christianity spread, the feast of the winter solstice, the time when the day begins to increase, and light to triumph over darkness, was changed into the Feast of Christ, the Light of Life.

The Christmas Carolers Are Welcome Everywhere

"HERE come the Carolers." So it used to be. Young faces pressed against the window-pane, straining to hear the cheerful carols outside. Perhaps it was the story of the Christ child put to tune or a ballad of love and cheer. When the singers were done the householder invited them in for a bite and a sup, or gave them a coin or two for their song.

Then on to the next house, to sing again under the stars or veiled behind sifted snow.

And then, in the early morning, home again to their own firesides.

It was a good old custom, this midnight minstrelsy in the season of peace and goodwill. "With the beginning of Yuletide, twelve days before Christmas day," as Percival Chubb tells us in the Standard, published in New York by the American Ethical Union, "small bands of musicians went the rounds and, 'in the mire' or on the road or on the steps, played the old folk tunes as a lyrical prelude to the great day." To some of the antique ballad airs, like "Good King Wenceslaus," says Mr. Chubb, the singers would add a hymn tune or two—"Once in David's Royal City" or "Hark the Herald Angels Sing."

"Punctuating the bustle of domestic preparation for the coming feast, these ministrations in the still night gave a breath of poetry that touched the spirit of Christmas with an enduring beauty. Day by day the tide of joyous anticipation rose until the crescendo broke into a forte of exuberance." Those simple days of the folk are gone, says Mr. Chubb; the glory is departed.

But the custom of making the rounds on Christmas eve to sing carols of peace and good will on earth still prevails here and there. —Literary Digest.

FRENCH WOMEN PLEAD FREEDOM FROM AUTHORITY

Tradition Standards Of Country May Be Upset By Law

By MINOTT SAUNDERS

NEA Service Writer

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The autocratic power of a French husband over the person and affairs of his wife, as decreed by Napoleon, will at last be broken if the bill introduced in the Senate by Rene Renoult, minister of justice, becomes law. It is meeting with vigorous opposition because it would upset the traditional social standards of the country, and amounts to a new charter for the married French woman.

Although the measure does not grant her the vote and has nothing to do with that question, it would emancipate her from the absolute authority of her husband to which she is at present legally compelled to submit.

She would be able to carry on a business of her own, have her own bank account and draw her own checks, make and receive gifts and bequests, institute judicial proceedings in her own name, obtain her own passport and travel without her husband's permission. She could even receive correspondence and her husband would have no legal right to open and read her letters, or control what she wrote.

HUSBAND NOW THE BOSS—

Under the Napoleonic law all these acts are forbidden without the consent of her husband. This is the first thorough reform for women seriously attempted and backed by the government to revise the civil code since 1804. Napoleon apparently did not have much faith in the judgment of women or their capacity to look after themselves. Whatever his dreams or experiences, he was just an old-fashioned fellow where the home was concerned.

He instructed his jurists to make it very plain that woman's place was in the home, looking after the children, according to the wishes of her husband, and devoting her idle time to what pursuits her lord and master might condone.

One important modification of the code became law in 1907 which granted women disposition of their earnings and their savings. The Renoult measure goes much farther and "tends first of all to put an end to the power of the husband the full exercise of legal rights."

OBEDIENCE QUALIFIED—

It would suppress the condition of a woman's obedience to her husband. She would be freed from the necessity of having her husband's signature to all legal acts.

By the same act, husbands would appear in court as defendants and are condemned to the payment of damages. For the old law works out both ways and a woman can get her husband in all sorts of difficulties if she does business of which he is not aware. Under the new measure marriage would remain a partnership to which each would be held to common duties, and bound to "mutual fidelity, aid and assistance." Both would be liable to the care and education of the children, and they would be required to live together.

MALE TO CHOOSE HOME—

The husband, however, would not relinquish all of his powers. He would continue to exercise his right of selecting the home where ever he thinks fit and be the supreme authority in the bringing up of the children. Absolute equality between the two would not be established. The measure says:

"In certain cases, without danger of disrupting the family, it is unimaginable that a decision should be left separately to each one of the two." In any such cases the word of the husband would prevail.

In actual practice the Napoleonic code has been taken in much the same way a smost of the old Blue Laws in the United States as the Frenchman and his wife have been abreast of the times. Women are in business, handle their own bank accounts and generally run the home.
